U. S. INFANTRY TAKES HILL IN SHARP FIGHT

Germans Report Major Soviet Offensive Under Way In Caucasus.

RAF BLASTS CONVOY

Allied Bombers Drive Through Swarms of Jap Planes To Attack Amboina.

(By Associated Press)

American infantry withstood three violent assaults by reinforced German troops and then smashed the Nazis back deeper into the hills of northern Tunisia, dispatches said today, while the British First army beat off a series of counter-attacks along the center of the 100-mile western barrier.

German defenses were clearly stiffening, marked by repeated stabs to jar the Allies off balance, but Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced that Allied troops edged forward on both wings of the front.

Other war headlines:

Russia — Moscow says "big events" in offing, Russians silent on German reports of major Soviet offensive in Caucasus; Nazis move up reinforcements in all sectors.

Air War—RAF blasts German convoy off Dutch coast, three ships left in flames.

Holland—Germans order internment of 400,000 Netherlands army veterans in attempt to halt anti-Nazi activity, but wily Dutch "go bicycling" (disappear).

Southwest Pacific—Allied bombers pound Japanese-occupied Amboina, former Dutch Indies naval base; swarms of enemy Zero planes fail to halt raiders.

Burma—Sharp fighting erupts on Arakan front. British repulse Japanese attacks.

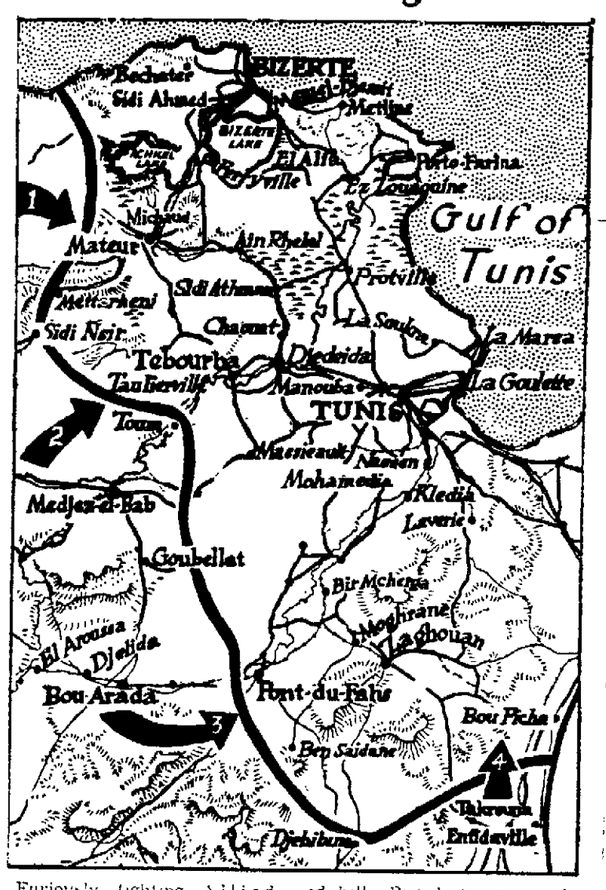
Allies Tackle Stronger Lines



Furiously fighting Allied forces encountered increased Nazi resistance in northern Tunisia's coffin corner today but American forces, indicated by arrow 1, continued to advance in the Mateur area where they captured a heavily defended hill. British troops continued to move ahead slowly toward Tebourba (arrow 2); and both British and French (arrow 3) were reported pounding at Pont du Fahs. The famed Eighth army (arrow 4) continued its slow push up the coast.

MEAT POINTS INCREASED ON POPULAR CUTS

Beef, Veal and Pork Values Advanced Effective at Midnight Sunday.

SOME ARE DECREASED

OPA Announcement Seeks To Encourage Buying of Meat With Lower Demand.

Mansfield housewives today were faced with the task of changing family appetites from the more popular cuts of beef, veal and pork to meats for which there is a lesser demand as a result of an Office of Price Administration ruling changing point values on meats effective at midnight Sunday.

The ruling raised to nine points, the values of round steak, both beef and veal, and center cut pork chops. Porterhouse, sirloin and other more expensive steaks remain at the eight-point-per-pound level.

The Richland county ration board was advised this morning of the revision in which loin pork roasts, slices of boneless ham steak and beef flank steaks also went up from 8 to 9 points per pound. Round tip beef roasts and veal sirloin or chops went up from 7 to 8 and veal leg roasts stepped up from 6 to 7.

Pork spareribs came down a point from 4 to 3 points per pound, hocks and knuckles from 3 to 2, and most variety meats (brains, sweetbreads, etc.) were reduced a point per pound each. An exception was liver which was unchanged at 6 for beef and 8 for veal. Shank end ham, fresh or ready, was cut a point.

An oddity of the new schedule is that, in coupons, round steak becomes more expensive than porterhouse steak, although the latter actually costs about 13 cents per pound more in cash. Persons having more cash than coupons may choose porterhouse, T-bone sirloin, club and rib steaks at their

Striking Coal Miners Pass Time

Striking coal miners in Pricedale, Pa., some of the thousands who have walked out of the pits in several states, are putting their idle time to contrasting uses. Albert Carr, left in top photo, and Grover Schuller build a fence around their Victory garden while other strikers, lower photo, engage in a little dice play.

Indicates All Coal Mines to Close Tonight

UMW Chief Telegraphs President Long Message Insisting Miners Are Patriotic While WLB's Unfair Following Policy Meeting.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, today spurned a back to work ultimatum by President Roosevelt, indicating that he would allow a general walkout in the nation's coal mines at midnight tonight.

Lewis, after a meeting with the policy committee of his United Mine Workers union, did not reply directly to President Roosevelt's demand that striking miners return to the coal pits at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

However he declared flatly that "we want an agreement—we want to work." This meant that the policy committee at a session which lasted scarcely more than an hour had voted to stand by the traditional miner's policy of "no contract—no work."

Lewis through the policy committee, addressed a long telegram to the president at the White House.

Lewis, in the telegram, charged that the bituminous coal operators of the country which employ 450,000 of his union members, had "willfully blocked the making of an agreement."

Then Lewis said: "We respectfully advise that in our judgment the making of an agreement through a renewal of collective bargaining is the logical means of providing justice and equity to all parties."

Lewis spent long paragraphs in the telegram defending the patriotism of the miners. But it was apparent from the contents of his telegram that at midnight there would be no work in the soft coal mines unless there was "an agreement."

There still was some hope of averting a similar walkout among 90,000 hard coal miners in eastern Pennsylvania at midnight. The miners were to meet with the hard coal operators late in the day and it was possible that the present contract of the hard coal miners would be extended for 30 days.

Lewis, in his reply to the president, attacked the wage policies of the War Labor board and its so called "Little Steel formula" holding wage increases to 15 per cent above January, 1941 levels. Lewis, who has frequently denounced the

LOAN GOES OVER TOP BY MILLION

$7,608,129 Total Reported With One Day Left in Drive; One in 10 Subscribe.

Evidence that Richland county vigorously took up the plea to avenge the killing of American fliers by the Japanese was shown today when the county War Loan drive went nearly a million dollars beyond its $6,649,000 quota.

The addition of $331,910 yesterday brought the total to $7,608,129.70 today. This figure is just $40,870 short of exceeding the quota by $1,000,000.

With all reports not yet complete, drive officials expect the total subscriptions to go even higher before the close of the drive at midnight Saturday.

Henry G Brunner and Paul M. Eliot, co-chairmen of the drive, said today that they are "very pleased" with the work done by Richland countians to make the drive a success. Nearly 6,230 persons in the county have subscribed to the drive making an average of one in every ten residents of the county.

Among the large subscriptions which shot the drive over the finish mark two days before the deadline was the $78,300 allocated to the county by the Ohio State Teachers Retirement fund. The $10,500,000 invested by that agency was allocated according to the bank

Warn Owners Of Dogs Ruining Gardens Will Be Prosecuted

A combined appeal and warning to Mansfield dog owners to keep their pets out of the neighbor's Victory garden was issued today by Mayor W. J. Locke and Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

Pointing out that police have been receiving a number of complaints about dogs damaging gardens, the mayor called on dog owners "to exercise care in seeing that their dogs do not destroy their neighbor's property.

"People are raising Victory gardens to help the food supply and I am appealing to all citizens who own dogs to use every possible means to cooperate with gardeners," the mayor said.

Less subtle in his warning Bates said dog owners will be held responsible for damage their pets cause to gardens and dog owners "will be prosecuted if they fail to keep the animal tied or at least out of the nighbors' yards."

Many Victory gardens are in unfenced lots and in space where there was lawn grass before so that it will be necessary to keep dogs under closer observance, it was pointed out.

Gardeners have complained to police that dogs are trampling the vegetables as they come up and in some cases digging in the gardens after the ground has been planted.

FLY ATLANTIC

Fighter Planes Wing Direct From Plants To Fronts.

LOS ANGELES (UP)—From the flying fields adjoining the factories, swarms of P-38 "Lightnings" take off, fly the Atlantic, and land at battle stations in Britain and Africa ready for combat.

The mass flights were disclosed today by Lockheed Aircraft company with the war department's permission. The flights speed delivery of the planes to the fighting fronts and save precious cargo space aboard merchant ships.

Ships already delivered in this fashion total several hundred. Only one has been lost en route. Another flew the final 300 miles on one motor.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) —Announcing the abrogation of all agreements with Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French West Indies, Secretary of State Cordell Hull today said the American navy will be on the alert to protect American interests in the French Caribbean area.

Hull announced that the United States has abrogated all its agreements with Admiral Robert because the latter insists on considering himself a representative of the Vichy government of France and refuses to cooperate with the United Nations in the war effort to liberate his own country.

The secretary also announced that this government is recalling the American consul general at Fort De France, Martinique.

Mother Informed 'Missing' Son Held Prisoner By Japs

A message from the war department advising her that her son was "missing in action" in the Philippine battle area came as a blow just a year ago to Mrs. Leah Black, 189 East Fourth street.

Yesterday a messenger boy brought what she said was the "most welcome news ever received." It was a telegram advising that her son was still alive although a prisoner of the Japanese.

Her son, Pfc. Nelson B. Hale, 23 was reported missing a year ago in May. Mrs. Black had received a letter from Pfc. Hale just a month before that. It was the last she heard from him.

The wire received yesterday was sent by the provost marshal general and promised that a letter would follow giving Mrs. Black more details of her son's fate.

Mrs. Black said he was a member of an infantry outfit which had served on Bataan. He enlisted in the army in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Besides his mother living in Mansfield are a sister, Mrs. Hazel Johnson and a brother, Paul Hale.

OHIOAN INJURED

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — (AP) — Second Lieut. Ray Paul McLaughlin of Elyria, O., was injured in the crash of a B-25 bomber yesterday near the Sacramento municipal airport. One officer was killed and another injured.

Muzzle Goes On All Mansfield Sirens Tonight

If you hear any type of siren in Mansfield after midnight tonight, better start remembering the black-out precautions for it will be an air raid warning signal.

Tonight marks the deadline for the use of sirens on fire engines, police cars, ambulances, and bicycles which must find new methods of clearing their paths through traffic.

Under an order of the civilian defense council, vehicles must silence their sirens so that the public won't be confused should the air raid sirens sound without advance notice.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said police cars will be equipped with exhaust whistles by Monday, while the city's fire engines will revert to the use of bells as they did in the "good old days," according to Chief C. J. Seeburger. Some ambulances will use exhaust whistles and others will get along without warning signals of any kind. At night, the red warning lights on ambulances will serve the purpose.

ODT Declares City Has Too Many Cabs, Calls for Reduction

The Office of Defense Transportation told Mansfield officials today that the city has too many taxicabs for its population and asked for a meeting here next Wednesday with city representatives and taxi owners to do something about reducing the number of cabs to save cars, tires and gas.

Mayor W. J. Locke said he had called a session with the five taxi company owners, Police Chief Meade K. Bates, and Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff for Wednesday afternoon. A representative of the

12 IN FIELD

Dozen 3-Year-Olds Entered For Kentucky Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (AP) — A field of 12 three-year-olds was entered today to run in tomorrow's Kentucky Derby, but there still was some doubt whether the highly-regarded Ocean Wave would get to the post.

The 11 colts and one gelding entered through the racing secretary's office before the entry box closed were all that remained of the 110 originally nominated for the mile and a quarter grind two months ago.

The fate of Ocean Wave as a starter will not be known until tomorrow morning. The successor to Whirlaway in the barn of Warren Wright of Chicago and Lexington, Ky., suffered a foot injury in winning the derby trial last Tuesday.

OFFERS BILL

Wheeler Would Let Registrants Take Draft Exams Early.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., has introduced a bill to permit persons of draft age to ascertain if they are physically qualified for military service before being called by their draft board.

Under Wheeler's bill, a man could apply for physical examination at any time before being classified 1-A. The bill provides that if he failed the physical tests, he would immediately be classified 4-F; if he passed, he would be classified 1-A but his time of induction would not be advanced.

GIVEN ONE BID ON ROAD WORK

Commissioners Find Little Interest By Contractors In Repair Program.

With only one bid received and with it being $4,714 in excess of the estimate, Richland county commissioners today delayed action on awarding a private contract for graveling 25 Richland county roads. The contract is to be given further consideration Monday.

Harvey Fleck was the only bidder, submitting a total bid of $39,194 for repair of sections of gravel roads in the south part of the county. County Engineer Howard Sword's estimate of the repair jobs was $34,750.

At least two courses are left open to the commissioners in their session Monday. They may accept the bid as submitted, or reject it which would entail advertising the project again and another bidding period.

There were intimations that a price agreement with Fleck might be negotiated at a figure less than that he submitted. Fleck, however, emphasied today that he was not sufficiently interested in procuring the contract to reduce his original bid.

This was the first time in more than 15 years that road repairs have been open for bid of private contractors since repair projects in previous years have been handled by the county road department. Owing to labor shortage and inability to purchase additional equipment now, this was not possible, the engineer explained.

The contract at stake involves only about half of the repair program on the county system.

FINAL DAY

Deadline Arrives For Switch To War Employment.

Today is the last day men of draft age may work on "non-deferrable" jobs without being subject to army induction.

Classification of those employed in any of the long list of "non-deferrable jobs listed by the Manpower commission about April 1 will get underway in Richland county selective service boards tomorrow with a 30-day respite granted those who can prove they are seeking other jobs in essential industry. To establish this proof, they must present a registration card from the U. S. Employment Service.

If at the end of the 30-day period, they are still working in "non-deferrable" positions, they will be classified without regard to the number of dependents they have, draft officials warned. They cautioned, however, that "non-deferrable" jobs should no be confused with jobs in businesses "unessential" to the war effort, since many not actually in defense positions still are not in the "non-deferrable" category.

BETS COASTS TO BE BOMBED

Paratroop Leader Lays 2 to 1 U. S. Will Be Attacked.

CHICAGO (INS)—Col. William C. Bentley, who led American paratroopers in the invasion of North Africa, was willing today to bet 2 to 1 that either or both coasts of the United States will be bombed before September.

He made his offer in an address before members attending the National Association of Broadcasters convention in Chicago.

"That is merely my prediction," he said. "But the Germans have carriers and the Japs have carriers, and I am perfectly willing to bet 2 to 1 that those bombs fall by the time I have stated."

SHANGRI-LA DIARY

TAKE-OFF FOR TOKYO!

Editor's Note. The dramatic take-off of B-25 bombers from the pitching deck of the aircraft carrier Hornet on their historic mission to Japan is described in the following installment of "Shangri-La Diary" by Richard Tregaskis.

By RICHARD TREGASKIS
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

AT SEA WITH SHANGRI-LA TASK FORCE—A great cheer rang out along our deck when the great event occurred at 8:22. The first army bomber inched along the Hornet's deck, gained momentum, and lifted abruptly into the wind, which was nearly at gale force. The plane bucked and rolled, then steadied and flew in a long slow curve ahead.

The Hornet was pitching noticeably now. Seas broke under the curved sides of her bow, shooting fans of spray to the sides. The flight deck was moving like a giant see-saw.

But the second plane came on, moving slowly against the wind, then lifting abruptly as if it were an elevator, tail held down, nose pointing skyward. She climbed until she almost stalled, and then she levelled, bobbed, and moved straight ahead.

Now the fourth bomber was waddling down the carrier's deck, and zooming into the air again, a cheer went up from our vessel. But the cheer turned to a groan a few seconds later.

The giant bomber as air-borne, but now she was sagging towards the steep gray waves. Her nose pointed upward, but she seemed to be losing speed. Now she was only a few feet over the water.

On our deck men were motioning upwards, crying "Up, up," but the bomber struggled on just over

SUSIE Q BURNS

Veteran Flying Fortresses Destroyed In Texas.

DALLAS, Tex. — (UP) — The "Susie Q," a valiant Flying Fortress which fought the Japs at Hickam Field on the first day of war, lay burned and shattered today after making a crash landing during a flight to sell war bonds.

The Susie Q caught fire shortly after taking off late yesterday from Love Field. The army said "three or four" men warce injured seriously, and others suffered cuts and bruises.

FBI Arrests Woman 'Ordered By Hitler' To Kill Bricker.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced today that Mrs. Frances Mary Macaratzes, of Columbus, O., a laundry worker, had been arrested under the federal extortion law on a charge that she had threatened the life of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio.

Hoover said Mrs. Macaratzes had sent a letter to Bricker in which she told him she had orders "direct from Hitler" to kill the governor. She signed the letter as "German spy number 7211," the FBI chief said, and boasted she could write in "two or three handwritings."

Hoover said that it was handwriting which led to the identification of the woman as the sender of the letter, which had been mailed at Columbus April 5.

CHAPTER XXVI

They were hard at it, with much already done, when Rosemary saw Bill St. Clair's car coming. She ran out to him, fear in her heart.

He looked very somber. He didn't speak at first, but just stared at the trucks and at the hubbub of activity up the street.

"Did you—Bill tell me! Did you see Harry Boyle?"

"I couldn't find him," said he. "I will yet. But I couldn't leave you here to face this alone. What's happening?"

Then they saw Sergeant Wayne approaching with three of his men.

"Mr. St. Clair," the sergeant said, "our men were just talking sir. They wanted me to come with thanks. Perhaps you could write our gratitude in a letter to Washington, too, sir. For this extra kindness"

"Extra kindness?" Bill stared at him.

"Yes sir. Quartering us this way in a ghost town. With real stone buildings. It's all so much better than we expected So much better than anything we've had before!"

"Oh, Bill!" murmured Rosemary.

William St. Clair had changed remarkably in the weeks since he and Rosemary came west His pallor had been replaced by a deep healthy tan burned in by the searing Rocky Mountain sun. Like westerners, too, he had taken to wearing a sport shirt open at the neck and a leather jacket which was both functional and picturesque.

At this moment Rosemary saw him quietly shucking off the leather jacket. And as he rolled up shirt sleeves, he answered the delegation of young Britishers who had come to him

"You want me to express thanks to Washington," Bill was saying. "I can't do that. Washington had nothing to do with it. They don't know you are in a ghost town They think you are in new barracks, which is where you should be."

"But sir," Sergeant Wayne put in, "this is better!"

"It is," Bill agreed. "But it wasn't headquarter's idea Nor my own. You owe thanks to Miss Lee."

"Bill I—" She tried to protest.

"We'll try to make everybody comfortable as soon as we can. Tell your men, Sergeant, that Miss Lee appreciates their thanks and we will arrange a proper celebration later. Perhaps when we are over the first hump we can have a big western campfire party. Like the idea?"

"YEA-A-A-A!"

Bill pitched in Rosemary saw the sober, worried looking individual which he had been of late, transformed into a man of action. Bill's zest for providing the needed housing and for thwarting Harry Boyle as well, was enough to lift his spirits.

'Ho, sergeant!" he called "Detail about 20 boys to come with me. Get some truck tools Hammers Screw drivers Saws Whatever we can find We'll start collecting window shutters and doors"

"Right, sir'"

Rosemary put in 'Bill, where will you get them?"

"Off the smaller houses, and more rickety ones You must have seen that practically every house has half its doors still intact. Seem to have been made of a native oak. Heavy, and enduring"

"Yes I—yes! Oh, Bill!"

"Not much window glass left, but lots of shutters, and lots of floor planks and interior walls. These can be used. There's enough planks to make tables, too."

"And Bill."

"Yes?"

"I can take a crew and work over the hotel kitchen, to make it feed everybody."

"Check There's a big stove in the Can Can cafe, too. Have it renovated. Try it out. Send one of the trucks and six men on a forage for wood Lots of dead limbs and some fallen trees up the canyon, remember. And then—Rosemary."

"Yes, Bill?"

"You take your note pad and stick by me. We've got to keep this thing organized."

* * *

Thus in scarcely half an hour the 150 British trainees were dispatched where they could work to best advantage, each under a corporal or special leader, with Bill overseeing all

He said to Rosemary, "You did the right thing in cleaning out temporary sleeping quarters and getting the water supply first."

"We'll need to check the food supply," she added.

"Yep And we better commandeer those two women draftsmen. Tell 'em—look, they probably don't want to be missing the fun anyway. Tell them they're responsible for a first aid station. Give them the Crystal Palace bar, four doors down Cody street there."

"All right, and we'll need pails, pans, linens, towels—"

"They must have emergency stuff with them. These 150 trainees, I mean."

"But Bill, in two days we'll have a lot more!"

"We'll pot it all out tonight and tomorrow First is to make these fellows comfortable. I—I feel ashamed for—"

Rosemary grabbed his arm, in sudden enthusiasm. "Bill, they're every one so thrilled they're about to pop! And I don't blame them. I'll bet no army detachment ever was quartered in a ghost town before."

He grinned at her, fondly. "They're all in love with you, Rosemary. Can you stand that?"

"Of course!" She wrinkled her nose, and dimpled at Little Boss. "But—something we must have is lights. For tonight"

"Yes. We don't have electricity—yet. Sit down here a moment and help me think"

They rested on the porch of the one-time Wells-Fargo Express Agency. Bill was eyeing her appreciatively again.

"You—plan to have electricity, then?" she inquired

"Campfires for the first night or two Then lanterns But electricity soon Rosemary, let me tell you a thing"

"Yes, Bill?"

"I am a grade A fool Why my architectural sense didn't show me this before, is a mystery. If it hadn't been for you—tch-tch!" It was better than formal thanks. "Anyway I can tell you this now. We're going to work like fury here. This town of Lightning once housed 14,000 people, Uncle Pete said. We have seen how well preserved it is. We can quickly make it ready for 5,000 flying cadets!"

"Yes, Bill . . . Yes."

"And have the hotel, opera house and other large buildings ready for instruction schools And use native rocks for hangars and such on the field. Better than lumber! Rosemary, our main project problem is solved! But—"

He stopped, staring down the main street. A car had come up the canyon and parked near Uncle Pete's hotel. And the man getting out of it was Harry Boyle.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Boys and girls who read independently can now learn more of their favorite characters through the two new books in the children's section of the Mansfield Public Library. One tells of the real Tom Thumb who lived nearly a hundred years ago, the other tells further adventures of a family of children who first appeared in an earlier book

HAVE YOU SEEN TOM THUMB? by Mabel Leigh Hunt, relates that Tom Thumb was really Charles Stratton, but under the direction of P. T. Barnum he became better known by the first name General Tom Thumb was only 55 inches tall when he was seven years old. He grew a few more inches and weighed 33 pounds when he was 22 years old He was a famous personage on the stage in this country and with royal families abroad. The book is humorous and full of the mischievous tricks and good fun of the midget man

THE FOUR STORY MISTAKE, by Elizabeth Enright, is another story of those four Melendy children who pooled their allowances and took turns spending them in THE SATURDAYS.

Four Story Mistake is the name of their country home with almost four stories, a brook, a tree house, and a secret cellar room. Those who don't know the Melendys really should make their acquaintance

Both books will be placed on the library shelves Saturday

HIVE THIEVES INCREASE

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(U.P.)—The high war prices now being paid for honey and beeswax have opened a new field for thieves and increased the duties of state apiary inspectors. The thieves steal the branded hives and the inspectors are called upon to locate them. In San Diego county alone, 240 hives, filled with honey, beeswax and bees, have been stolen and only 60 of the hives recovered to date.

FEWER TRIPS, LONGER RESTS give ordinary oil more time than ever to drain down from or dry off of cylinder walls and pistons, leaving them without effective lubrication when you start your motor.

(According to expert opinion, there can be as much wear on such a motor in one minute as there would be in up to 200 miles of normal "warmed up" driving.)

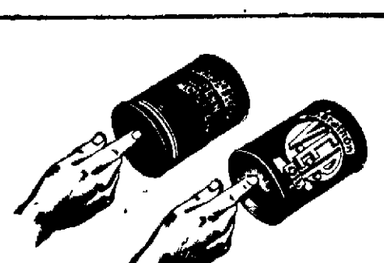
V E P GIVES "STAY-PUT" LUBRICATION Entirely new, different V E P Alloyed-Oil has a 'magnetic-like' action which makes it cling to cylinder and piston walls not only overnight, but also for weeks at a time You have effective lubrication before you step on the starter.



FEEL THE PROOF! Make this convincing demonstration at your Marathon dealer's. Feel the inside of two inverted oil cans, both drained at the same time. The wall of the can which contained ordinary oil is "dry;" the V.E.P. can is still oily.

LET THAT "A" OR "B" STICKER on your windshield be a warning sign. Let it remind you that your motor needs V.E.P.'s protection against "start-up" damage. Especially now that repair parts and mechanics are so scarce. Let it remind you, too, that with today's slower speeds, shorter trips, your motor seldom gets hot enough to throw off sludge-forming moisture produced by combustion of gasoline . . . that, now more than ever, it needs V.E.P.'s protection against sludge, carbon, sticky varnish, corrosion. Signing Up as Nurse's Aide

Mrs E L Marks Red Cross staff assistant is shown above enrolling Mrs Paul E Lantz 79 Massa avenue as a prospective nurse's aide During this week the Mansfield Red Cross is conducting a campaign to enroll 200 prospects for nurse's aide classes Over the nation this year 100 000 nurse's aides will be needed to release trained nurses for military duty and to assist in under-staffed hospitals

TOO MUCH

HOLLYWOOD Cal (UP)—Mrs. Victoria de Olazeal former wife of the late Tom Mix Chero of western films and later married to a South American diplomat knew her Spanish too well She told the court that her husband swore at her both in English and Spanish. When the court asked her if she understood the Spanish cuss" words she said she did and the divorce was promptly granted

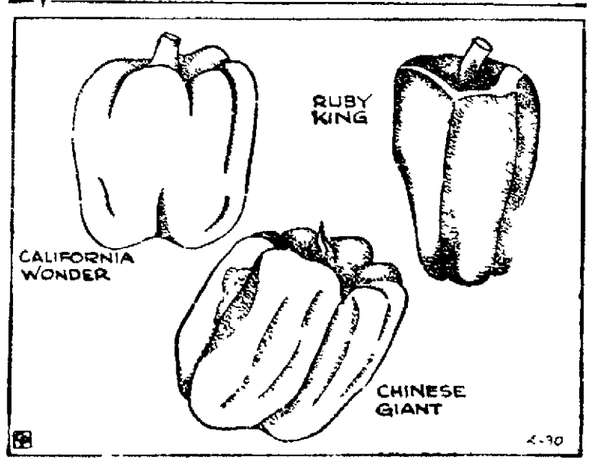
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Sweet Peppers In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released By Central Press Assn

SWEET PEPPER plants deserve a place in every Victory garden They are an excellent source of vitamins A and C as well as furnishing a good amount of B2 (Riboflavin)

Sweet peppers can be planted where the soil is rather poor for if they are grown in soil that is too rich the plants will grow more to foliage than fruits

There are many varieties of peppers having different characteristics California Wonder illustrated in the accompanying Garden Graph is a great favorite of gardeners everywhere The fruits measure some 4½ inches in length and 4 inches in diameter. The mild

chief characteristic of California Wonder is the thickness of its flesh These peppers are very sweet and are excellent for table use

Chinese Giant is another favorite pepper It is tender mild and sweet also a very early variety and prolific This pepper will deserve its name of Giant for the fruits average 12 to 15 inches in circumference

Also illustrated is Ruby King another pepper of excellent reputation The fruits of the Ruby King are usually lobed and of a deep green color which turns into a glowing ruby red when the fruit is ripe This variety is also exceedingly thick fleshed sweet and

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

SACATON, Ariz.—We, the great-hearted, idealistic people of the U. S. A., have got ourselves into a terrible fix with these Japanese of ours, 14,000 of whom are impounded, so to speak, in the concentration camp which we call a relocation project on this God-forgotten Arizona desert.

The native Americans among them are entitled to every right and privilege of citizenship but many of them are hateful, reptilian enemies of our country who would delight to do us dirt if they could. If, individually, they should sue for their freedom our courts would have to turn them loose, although in that case some of them would be mobbed in their old home towns back in California and elsewhere on the Pacific coast. Even the loyal Americans among them would be in danger if liberated and sent home, because all Japs look alike, in a manner of speaking, and the hatred of the Californian for a Jap is more ferocious than ever after the murder of some of General Doolittle's boys.

Pegler

So if we turn square with ourselves and decide to abide by our revered constitution and our laws we risk not only their lives but our own and, consequently, here they are in the desert and there we are behind the eight-ball. The fortunate marvel of it all is that our public opinion which, after all runs things in this country, has bowed to necessity and expediency. The civil liberty fakers of the east and the communist cells of Hollywood, always in a terrible swivet over a Tom Mooney or a Harry Bridges, have been intently tying their shoes ever since the roundup a year and more ago.

Now that the first confusion is over and we have gained some experience and got a line on the loyalty or disloyalty of individuals we could improve our handling of the job. The whole lot of them are mixed together in barracks with only curtains and other improvised partitions to segregate the family units and the administration of the camp is entirely in the hands of civilians, with MP's patrolling the borders of the area on the outside. That is bad because the known enemies among them should be moved into separate camps where they can't contaminate or worry the loyal Americans and be ruled by strict, efficient units of the military police.

To be sure, that would involve a violation of the constitutional rights of the native-American traitors and suspects but inasmuch as we are violating their rights anyway, we might as well do it right and get the best possible results out of our sin. In time, in due process, we could arrange to let Japan have them in exchange for some of our people.

The worst class are those who were born here and therefore are no less American than George Spelvin, himself, under the law, but who were sent back to Japan as children to attend Japanese schools and in some cases, to serve in the Japanese army. Harper's Magazine published last October, with the government's consent, a confidential report by an intelligence officer, an expert on the subject of our Japanese population, which described this group, known as Kibei, pronounced kee-bay, as a dangerous element and said that such Japs, returning here as adults "may very probably have been deliberately planted here by the Japanese government."

It is impossible for the traitors and the immigrant Japanese who, of course, are still citizens of Japan, to make an armed uprising. The loyal Americans would get wind of it and tell the camp administration and, anyway if the MP detachment couldn't handle the job with its weapons and grenades, plenty of other troops could be rushed up in a short time. But they could burn some of the buildings and start a riot in the court of which some of the innocent might be hurt along with the enemies.

Far be it from me to attribute any act of Harold Ickes to altruistic motives, but when he took a few approved Japs for work on his farm in Maryland he performed a good deed by publicizing a way out for some of the loyal Americans. If you can employ a Jap or a man and a wife on a farm or in a household and if you can satisfy the FBI that you are all right yourself and that the neighbors won't molest them, you may be allowed to take one or more of these Americans out of detention.

LEADERS BACK ARMY TRAINING IN PEACETIME

But Capital's Lukewarm, Says Congress Has Considered Idea Since 1940.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Congressional military leaders today warmly endorsed the idea of peacetime military training for young men following indications that President Roosevelt, fresh from his inspection tour, is thinking of postwar training for young people of both sexes.

The capitol reaction to including young women in an overall youth training program, however, was lukewarm.

Members were quick to point out that proposals to make one year of military service compulsory for every male youth have been offered in both house and senate. Congress, they said, has "been ahead," rather than behind the white house on this.

Chairman May (D) Ky., of the house military affairs committee declared himself "100 per cent behind training for high school boys." He announced that he would reintroduce a compulsory training bill of his own and start hearings on it later in the current session.

Sen. Austin (R) Vt., co-sponsor of a bill to draft both men and women for war work, now being considered by May's committee, said:

"I'm in favor of the idea of peacetime training. We need legislation but of course the proposal is not new. Congress has been considering it since 1940."

Austin is the ranking minority member of the senate military affairs committee. He called particular attention to a bill introduced by Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., last Feb 11, which would submit each young man to a year's military or naval training within three years after his 18th birthday.

President Roosevelt returned from his second wartime tour of camps and war plants expressing interest in finding postwar use for existing training installations. Mr. Roosevelt said he was especially impressed with the physical development of army and navy trainees since his nationwide swing last September.

MORGENTHAU'S CONFUSED ON BILL, SAYS GOP

Republicans Ready To Attack Doughton Bill as Secretary Gives His Support.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — House Republicans today charged that Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., was "confused" about the treasury-approved pay-as-you-go tax plan which would forgive about 50 per cent of 1942 income taxes.

They also revealed that they will use some of the administration's own weapons for their new fight to put over the Carlson-Ruml "skip-a-full-year" plan. When floor debate starts next week, they will make parliamentary use of the partial forgiveness plan of Rep. A. Willis Robertson, D., Va., as well as arguments voiced by Chairman Robert L. Doughton, D., N. C., of the house ways and means committee, one of their staunchest opponents.

The Republican strategy was revealed after Morgenthau announced the treasury's full approval of Doughton's pay-as-you-go bill and said that it would yield about $3,000,000,000 more in fiscal 1944 than present income tax laws and place all taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis by the end of 1943.

The Doughton bill would cancel about half of 1942 taxes by having them computed on the 1941 basis, amortizing the remainder of 1942 taxes over 1944, 1945 and 1946, and crediting 1942 taxes already paid to 1943.

Republican Spokesman Rep. Harold Knutson of Minnesota said: "When he (Morgenthau) says the . . . bill will place all taxpayers on a current pay-as-you-go basis 'by the end of 1943,' he is either trying deliberately to mislead the public and the congress, or he has been grossly misinformed.

"Personally the Doughton (administration) plan is so confusing that I, in a more charitable frame of mind, might say that Mr. Morgenthau has been confused by it."

Morgenthau, stopping in Dallas, Tex., last night en route back here from the Pacific coast, was optimistic about passage of the administration bill and said that if Speaker Sam Rayburn has his way "he will probably get it through the house in two days. He admitted that it would be "almost impossible" to set up the new program by July 1, but promised to do the impossible if congress completes action by May 15.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Forgotten Men on Broadway.

(No. 1—"Eye-Filling")

AT THE OPENING of any Broadway show there are usually three fellows who stand or pace in the back of the theater all through the performance and disappear at intermission time. One is the author, and he is recognizable by his feverish manner and his tendency to whisper each line of dialogue in unison with the actors. The second is the director, also taut, and inclined to mutter phrases like "No, no, cross left, for God's sake!" The third is the calm member of the trio. Once he has studied the stage and perhaps murmured, "Little too much pink," he very likely ambles over to Sardi's for a Scotch-and-soda. This fellow would be the set designer.

Kilgallen

The scenic designer is the forgotten man of the legitimate stage. When the critics hie to their polished typewriters to inscribe the notices, the designer's painstaking work—as important in its way as the author's, director's or star's—gets brushed off with an adjective like "eye-filling" when the first nighter approves; "competent," when he hasn't had his hat knocked off; or "distracting" if he hated it. So that the most any scenic artist can hope for is that his one-word review on the morning after will at least be a kind word.

Of course, set designers achieve eminence and often fortune in the theater, and sometimes the public even knows a little fact or two about their lives off-stage. Most citizens are aware that Norman Bel Geddes designed the Futurama at the World's Fair and has a daughter who acts, that Jo Mielziner has become a captain in the army, and that Lee Simonson wrote a book full of provocative sketches of theaters large enough to house a re-enaction of the Battle of the Marne.

One young scenic designer who is just beginning to achieve this kind of limited recognition, despite a decade of major contribution to the theater is Howard Bay. He is a tall, soft-spoken young man whose habit of working noiselessly in a battered red sweater led Billy Rose to describe him as a "nondescript genius."

Bay has, thus far this season, done the sets for "Something for the Boys," "The Eve of St. Mark," "The Patriots," "Count Me In," and the new Department of Agriculture show, "It's Up to You." Had an actor appeared in, or a director staged such a varied and eminent collection of plays in one season, Broadway would be hailing an unusually talented gent and all over town admirers would be drinking champagne out of his slipper.

The fact that in truth his name still evokes only a vague "Who's he?" indicates the hard lot of set designers.

Bay, just turned 30, has been in the theater since he was 15. His first brush with the footlights occurred at Carnegie Tech, from which he was expelled while still a 15-year-old freshman because he tactlessly ordered the head of the school's drama department out of the theater in which Howard and some other students were preparing a show.

In the next few years he attended nine other colleges, amassing a vast number of credits but no degrees.

His first big Broadway break came when Herman Shumlin engaged him to design the sets for "The Little Foxes," an assignment that was duck soup—in fact, pate de fois gras—for him, he being a fiery admirer of the accoutrements of the era in which that play was laid, and an expert on the tastes of that period.

He lives with his wife and year-old daughter in an apartment on West 52nd street, opposite Leon & Eddie's. With a rare flair for anachronism, he has taken this house in a street devoted almost exclusively to gaudy night clubs and has decorated it entirely in post-Victorian style, with all the trappings from papier mache to stuffed owls, the one concession to modernity being a large library of hot jazz records.

WPA WILL FOLD UP AT MIDNIGHT

Program Spent $900,000,000 In Ohio In Seven and Half Years of Operation.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS The Work Projects administration, once one of Ohio's largest employers, quietly goes out of business at midnight tonight.

The federal agency hit a peak of 278,000 on its rolls in October, 1938, operated today with 75 employes.

Sixty of these were working in nursery schools which will be taken over by the federal works agency tomorrow. Fifteen were administrative employes completing liquidation of the agency which has spent an estimated $900,000,000 on construction work in the state since 1935.

Dr. Carl Watson, who has been Ohio administrator for the WPA since it took over its first project from the federal emergency relief agency in November, 1935, said he would retire to his farm near Findlay.

President Roosevelt late last year ordered liquidation of the WPA, asserted wartime employment increases had eliminated any need for the agency established to reduce unemployment and develop public construction projects.

A state WPA operations executive estimated that in handling virtually every kind of construction the WPA spent approximately $900,000,000 during the eight years it operated in Ohio.

Up and Down THE STREET

Mansfielders apparently think the city's parking meters afford a good place to get rid of their defaced and foreign coins that can't be used in ordinary transactions. L. L. Kochenderfer, parking meter inspector, is finding an increasing number of "plugged" pennies and nickels that have been cut or filed almost beyond recognition. Recently his collections produced a French 10 centimes coin. The defaced money is not an entire loss to the city, however, Kochenderfer said, since it can be sold by the pound. He also is checking the slugs he takes from the meters to determine if they contain enough brass or lead to make them valuable as salvage metal.

Almost as simple as "shooting fish in a barrel" is shooting snakes in the grass out Greter's Lake way. What was intended to be a hunt for wood chucks turned into the serpent slaying Monday when a Mansfield trio killed 17 blue racers. The sport was such fun that they returned yesterday to kill 17 more snakes in a woods on Walker's road. The snakes, which ranged from three to five feet in length, are believed to have been hibernating in a nearby rocky section.

To the Girl Scouts an accident is not something to be moaned over but a long-awaited opportunity to put into practice some newly acquired knowledge. When several Mansfield Scouts took a bike hike recently, two of the girls had a spill with resulting minor injuries. Imagine their consternation when they found that their comrades were not sympathetic but happy over the fact that "now we can use our first aid kits."

CLEVELANDERS RIDE BUS AGAIN

Transportation Tie-Up Ends After 18 Hours, Workers Shout Ballot.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND Street car and bus service returned to normal today after a strike by AFL unionists paralyzed the city's mass transportation system 18 hours.

More than 1,200 members of the Transit Employes union met late yesterday and voted to end the walkout which began at midnight Wednesday.

Thomas P. Meaney, president of the local, Dan W. Duffy, the union's counsel, and Michael F. Garvey, international vice president, pleaded with the employes to go back to work and the members responded with a shouted ballot.

The return-to-work decision followed an order by the Regional War Labor board and a declaration by Mayor Frank J. Lausche that he was prepared to "request the president of the United States to send troops if this strike continues much longer."

Walter J. McCarter, the system's general manager, said wage negotiations between the union and the city transit board would be resumed today.

The union seeks a wage scale of $1.05 an hour for street car motormen and conductors, and $1.15 an hour for bus drivers, who operate alone. Street car men now receive 90½ cents an hour and bus operators 97½ cents hourly.

Idleness of the system's 1,378 trolleys, trailers and buses failed to produce a marked increase in absenteeism at war plants, for officials surveyed at random generally had 90 per cent or more of their normal shifts on hand.

Many Cuyahoga county motorists - 17 per cent have "B" or "C" ration books - even reported difficulty in finding hitch hikers.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD- "I went into the theater to attract attention."

Thus spake John Garfield, whose story has special significance in this era of growing delinquency in children.

Garfield was a "problem child." Perhaps it was his fault. Perhaps not. Let's look at the record:

He was born as Jules Garfinkle in the maelstrom of New York's East Side. It was a tough world for a child, full of dirt, poverty and fear, particularly tough for a motherless boy whose father, a cantor, was busy. He had to use physical strength to rise in that world, to become unusual.

Coons

The battles were bloody. When he laid out his opponents, he got his reward.

"I was known as a tough mug," Garfield says now. "I had the spotlight."

He might have continued to be a tough mug had not two things happened. One was seeing a stumble-bum, when his sole desire was to be a prize-fighter. The picture wasn't pretty.

And then Jules Garfinkle discovered that he loved the theater. When he was 15, he decided it was his career.

His first engagement was with a semi-professional repertory bunch off Broadway. His first play was "Midsummer Night's Dream."

"I didn't know what the hell I was talking about," he says now.

Then followed several years of small parts and understudy jobs with such people as Eva LaGallienne, Paul Muni, and the organization known as the Theater union. But it wasn't until he ran up against the Group Theater that he learned the fundamentals of acting.

This now-deceased outfit was composed of professionals who believed that they could never be too big to stop learning their profession. Franchot Tone, Burgess Meredith and Albert Dekker were among them. Classes were held constantly, scenes were prepared for study new plays were read.

Garfield became an apprentice. Then came an unknown playwright named Odets, with a play called "Waiting For Lefty." It rocked New York. Odets, Garfield, and the rest of the cast were offered contracts right and left. From potatoes they went to filet mignon. But they wouldn't leave the Group. It had become a religion to them, by that time.

Under Group auspices they presented Odets' next work, "Awake and Sing." This, too, was a hit. Then Garfield came to Hollywood and "Four Daughters" made him an immediate hit.

His childish desire to attract attention now manifests itself in crusades for causes the public isn't yet interested in. He was one of the first to send aid to Loyalist Spain, to China, to think about the Hollywood Canteen. With Bette Davis, he organized the club for service-men. At present, he is happy because his new picture, "The Fallen Sparrow," concerns an anti-Fascist veteran of the Spanish war.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It will be home-coming day tomorrow at Ohio State Reformatory for what we sometimes laughingly call "the alumni." It may be a misnomer, but none of the select few Mansfield sport fans making their annual trek out on the hill will bother to argue the point.

The only argument they'll be interested in will be fought out with fists, not words, and happy the "alumni" will be that they'll not be called upon to toss those fists, nor yet to catch 'em.

The occasion is the final championship bouts of the O. S. R. boxing tournament—Physical Director George Allerding's annual fistic fiesta for a few friends in town, and for all the students on the campus.

Admission is by special invitation ticket only, and ticket holders hold on to those ducats until they've been in the walled city, seen the fights, and get out again.

That's one place you can't break into, and brother, you can't break out. That is for the sure.

And fight fans who haven't already received invitations to the soiree needn't bother putting in a bid now. The ducats are limited, and have already been distributed.

The list of invited guests is a carefully checked one. The school's headmaster doesn't want visitors who might be carrying files or knives or other bric-a-brac from the hardware store to distract the minds of the students.

It will be a big day on the hill for the student body. Championship battles in some of the closely contested divisions arouse tremendous interest among the slug-bugs, and the wagering is terrific.

There may not be so much betting in the coin of the realm, which can be a scarce commodity sometimes, but the sporting gentry are not slow to back their favorites with next month's candy and tobacco ration.

And woe betide the battler who takes a dive with a carload of cigarets riding on him.

Chief interest this year has been in the light heavyweight division which has had an unusually large number of good leather pushers entered.

Which means there should be some classy action in the championship fracas among the big boys where punches pack power.

It'll be a busy day for the Old Podger. Up and to work on the Saturday paper, out to the fights in the afternoon, to the women's "B" league bowling banquet in the evening, and back to work on the Sunday paper Saturday night. Sunday is a day of rest, I hope.

BUCYRUS CUTS DOWN ON SPRING SPORTS

BUCYRUS — Wartime restrictions influenced a decision of Bucyrus school officials to abandon an official spring sport program, which will be replaced with a program of track and baseball competition with boys from schools in the county, Edwin Gearhart, principal, announced today. No letters will be given for the sports which will be in charge of Nick Wasylik.

The abbreviated program will permit boys who are interested in entering the state district meet at Mansfield an opportunity for practice.

With Count Fleet going to the post in Saturday's race for the roses as the shortest-odds mount ever to face the barrier in the Blue Grass classic, maybe you'll like this tale of the nag which paid the longest price ever returned through the mutuel windows. We hope so, anyway.

Back in 1915, "Regret" won the Derby—the only filly ever to hit the wire first in the big event. Our yarn is about a 1912 filly, and it has a bit of Regret in it, too—although her name was "Wishing Ring."

Wishing Ring was a maiden, which means she had never won a race (the explanation is for those who had never had two bucks riding on a hay-burner).

Her owner needed some dental work one winter, and a Columbus real estate man took a Wishing Ring lien for a $300 loan. The following spring, after some of his other stable stars had won a few heats, the owner paid back the $300, but told the Columbusite he'd always have a share of the horse.

Finally Latonia opened, and Wishing Ring went along with the stable, still a maiden. One day the Columbus man received a wire.

It said: "I've found a spot for Wishing Ring. She can't lose. Better come down and bring some cash. We'll make a killing."

Off to Latonia went the Capital City man, a sucker for a hot tip, even as you and I. He had the $300 in his pocket, and was ready to shoot the works.

The day of the big race dawned dark and dismal. Storm clouds hovered, but no rain fell. The owner, squinting at the sky, opined:

"Wishing Ring can't go except in the fast. If it's damp out there she'll quit. We won't bet until just before post time and we won't bet at all if it's raining."

When the bugle sounded, the clouds were darker than ever, and rain was expected any minute. The filly was saddled and the owner and his friend finally made their decision.

They told the jockey:

"We're not betting on this one, because she can't win if it starts to sprinkle. So just lay back in seventh or eighth place, and we'll try again when the weather's better."

Oddly enough, a horse named Jup Pluvius was the favorite. The odds on Wishing Ring looked like a telephone number.

Came the cry "they're off!" and Jup Pluvius was winging away in front. They neared the stretch turn with Jup Pluvius on the rail and two others just outside him. Our heroine, Wishing Ring, was on the rail behind the "Jup," in fourth place. Then the sun broke through.

As they hit the turn Jup Pluvius bore outward, carrying the other leaders with him. Wishing Ring, seeing the opening on the rail, took the bit in her teeth and started home. She hit the wire a good two lengths out front, and the mutuel board flashed the payoff—$1,884 for $2.

That's the longest payoff in history, made in 1912 and it still stands. The two guys "in the know" didn't have a dime on her gallant nose, but a bride from Chicago spending her honeymoon in Kentucky, was among the winners.

She had never seen a horse race, she said, and knew nothing of picking 'em. How did she happen to plop down two bucks on Wishing Ring?

"Her name was so much like wedding ring I just couldn't resist."

BEULAH PARK LIFTS RACE SEASON LID

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Beulah park at nearby Grove City opens the Ohio racing season tomorrow with an eight-race program topped by the running of the inaugural, an allowance event for a $600 purse.

Try Flying, owned by Mrs. Arthur Bevan of Columbus, is expected to be installed the favorite in the inaugural. The Bevan Campaigner won 11 out of 22 races last year.

The Beulah meeting will run for 26 days, closing Monday, May 31.

Wave Reported Ready to Go

There'll Still Be Fun In Kentucky Derby.

By SID FEDER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(AP)— They have been calling this the "street car derby" and the "catch Count Fleet" derby around here for weeks, but if this Saturday's scramble isn't a natural for the "bunion derby" then there's plenty of Bouron in Derbytown.

Which there isn't.

For, giving this 69th Kentucky Derby field a quick run-down, as the entry box opened this morning to settle the whole thing, you find the top two favorites and one of the choicest of the other hay-stokers troubled with foot aches and pains.

And this doesn't include Burnt Cork, the pride and joy of Rochester of the radio who has no aches and pains except that the colt apparently is troubled with the "blows." That's a fatal trouble, usually, in the Derby mile and a quarter.

But just take the top of the lot—Count Fleet. Twelve days ago he won the Wood Memorial after being all but cut down at the gate. Next there is Ocean Wave, second choice to the Count in the Derby. He won the Blue Grass stakes nine days ago with a cracked heel. Then he waltzed in with the Derby trial mile by nine lengths with the same ailment, only that time it was a little tougher to take.

Next, there is Slide Rule. He pulled up sore after a workout three weeks ago, but he's come out of it.

The betting is 1 to 5 around here the Wave is ready to roll when the band plays "My Old Kentucky Home" for the ten or a dozen colts and the 50,000 expected two buck bettors on Saturday. If he is, you're going to see some fun.

College Sport Outlook Better

Harmon's Football Legs Boost Prospects.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Continuation of college athletics is more certain now than it was a year ago, Major John L. Griffith, Athletic Commissioner of the Western Conference, declared today.

Griffith said he based his conclusions on several generally known facts and others which he was not at liberty to disclose.

"For one thing," he said, "the public knows now that our college athletic facilities designed for peacetime can be of value to the war effort. The testimony of boys like Michigan's Tommy Harmon, who credited his football legs for his survival after his plane crashed in a jungle, is helping to prove this.

"These boys say their sports conditioning enables them to get out of tight places alive and is helpful to them in actual fighting."

Griffith said that all Western Conference schools, as well as Notre Dame and several other mid-west independents, were making sure their spring sports programs go through.

"Our greatest contribution will be not morale, or recreation, or play, but conditioning and training men for the armed forces," he said.

Red Birds Take Only Game Played

(By Associated Press)

The weatherman stepped in and prevented six American association teams from opening their season yesterday, but he gave his blessing to Columbus and the Red Birds took the opportunity to wring a 5 to 3 victory over Louisville in the only game played.

Weather permitting, today's belated start will have Indianapolis at Toledo, Kansas City at St. Paul, Milwaukee at Minneapolis, and Louisville playing its second game at Columbus.

Nick Cullop's Red Birds winners of the junior world championship last year opened before 3,427 customers with pitcher George (Lefty) Dockins grabbing victory No. 1.

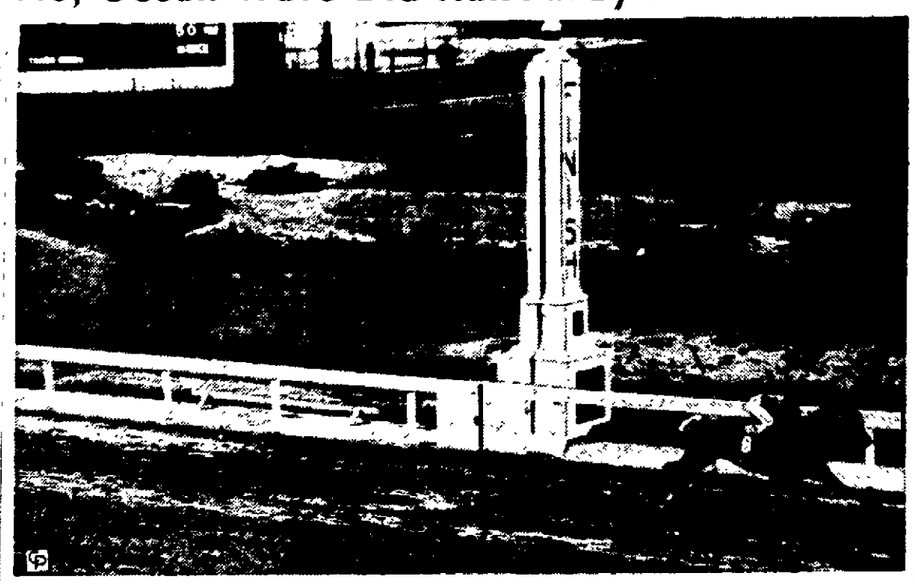
Reds Meet Soldiers Of Lambert Field

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— Cincinnati's Reds engage the Soldiers of Lambert Field in a twilight exhibition today in preparation for their week-end series with the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The game is the first of a half dozen the Reds have booked with service teams. Vernon Stone and Bob Malloy are Cincinnati's pitchers.

Yesterday's 6-1 win over the Pirates in Pittsburgh gave the Reds two out of three and Johnny Vander Meer a record of allowing two runs and 12 hits in 29 innings. Johnny had the Pirates blanked on three hits until the ninth.

No, Ocean Wave Did Run All by Himself



It would seem that Ocean Wave, second to Count Fleet as a Kentucky Derby favorite, was running in this Derby trial at Churchill Downs all by himself. But he wasn't. It's just that the other horses in the race finished so far behind—nine lengths—that the cameraman couldn't get them into this photo of Warren Wright's speedy Kentucky Derby entry crossing the finish line.

Single Golf Loop Planned

Organization Meeting Scheduled Tuesday.

Golfers attending the called meeting of the News-Journal "A" and "B" leagues last night at Possum Run golf club decided to go ahead with plans to combine in one league for the coming season.

A check-up of remaining golfers from the two leagues showed there will be only enough club swingers left for one organization.

However final organization of the single league was not completed last night, and a second meeting has been called for next Tuesday night at 7:30 at Possum. All golfers interested in playing in the league, whether or not they were members of the two leagues last summer, are urged to attend the Tuesday session, or get in touch with "A" league Secretary Carl Wiseman with the information that they will play.

League organization must be speeded up in order to assign backers for the new loop.

Whippets Defeated In Galion Game

SHELBY — The Shelby Whippets lost at Galion, 6 to 5, on Thursday for the first baseball loss of the season in three starts.

Shelby took a 2 to 1 lead at the end of the second inning and was out in front until the fifth inning when Galion went into the lead, 4 to 3.

Shelby again took the lead in its half of the sixth inning, but Galion rallied to score two runs in the last half to win the ball game. The contest was then called because of the weather.

The Whippets were scheduled to meet New Haven on the Municipal Water company diamond here today, but because of wet ground, the contest will probably have to be postponed.

Johnny Hurls In Top Form

Vander Meer Again Becomes Dutch Master.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

PITCHING has been the prize product of the major leagues this spring and scintillating performances have been piled one on top of another. But there would be no argument if the question were asked, "Who is the outstanding hurler to date?"

The answer is Lefty John Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds.

The New Jersey Dutchman is slated for early induction into the armed forces and seems determined to paint his farewell to the National league in figures that will be remembered.

He has gone to the mound three times in eight days, pitched 29 innings and allowed only two runs and 12 hits. He beat Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 in 11 innings on opening day and four days later himself was defeated 1-0 by Howie Pollet of the Cards.

Yet he was back again yesterday with another effective effort, this time turning back the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-1 on six hits. He had a shutout till the ninth, when the Bucs finally bunched three blows for a run.

This triumph kept the Reds tied with the Cards for third place in the senior circuit as St. Louis slipped over a 4-3 12-inning conquest of the Chicago Cubs. The world champions were beaten 3-1 by rookie Eddie Hanyzewski going into the last half of the ninth, but came up with one of their familiar rallies to tie the score on a two-run pinch single by Coaker Triplett. Then in the 12th Ray Sanders singled across the deciding run with his only hit of the game.

The Brooklyn Dodgers completed a sweep of their series with the Phillies on the gift of two unearned runs for a 4-3 victory.

The Boston Braves vaulted into second place back of the Dodgers by beating the New York Giants 5-2 behind the six-hit hurling of Charley (Red) Barrett.

In the American league the New York Yankees were forced into 12 innings by the Boston Red Sox, but won 7-3 with a final four-run blast.

* * *

The Washington Senators maintained their grasp on third place with a 5-1 decision over the Philadelphia Athletics. Bob Johnson batted in three runs against his former teammates.

In the other game of the day the Detroit Tigers were outhit but beat the St. Louis Browns 3-2.

CHURCH GROUP OBSERVES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Galion Missionary Society Marks Event With Ceremony.

GALION — To celebrate the silver anniversary of the Woman's Missionary society of Peace Lutheran church, an impressive candlelight ceremony, written by Mrs. L. E. Place, was presented at the parish house Thursday evening.

Charter members—there are 11 living—and the Lutheran daughters, were guests. One of the organizers, Mrs. Dora Burnett, and Mrs. Place, received at the door.

The ceremony was entitled, "Memories."

Past officers of the society participated, taking their places to form a cross. During the service each gave something of the record of the organization since its organization. Assisting in the ceremony were two soloists, Mrs. Howard Thayer and Mrs. Byron Musselman, who were accompanied by Mrs. Robert Manning. There were 22 past officers taking part. During the ceremony, a memorial was held for all deceased members.

At the conclusion Rev. Philip E. Auer, gave a prayer of Thanksgiving for the 25 years of service, and the group sang a hymn. "Oh, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee."

Miniature Bible book marks tied with a silver cord and tassle, were given as favors. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Paul Durtschi and committee.

Guest speaker of the Galion Study club Thursday evening was Richard Douglass, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, who came at the invitation of Attorney Kenneth M. Petri. A talk was also given by Fred Staub. The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Findley.

HUSK CORN

BUCYRUS — Choosing to spend their efforts in a worthwhile project, students of Lykens school dispensed with their annual dramatics this year and volunteered for corn husking at the Don Haines farm near Lykens, Wednesday.

The students, two of them girls, spent the day in the field, husking 300 bushels of corn on a six acre tract. They were supervised by the vocational teacher, Wilbur Beach, and H. T. Trostmiller.

NAME OFFICERS

BUCYRUS—C. A. Michael and E. S. Foreman were re-elected and F. O. Trautman was named to succeed the late Neil Jersey as directors of Bucyrus country club for 1943 when members and stockholders met to formally open the season at the clubhouse Wednesday night. Directors will name the new official staff early next week.

The grounds will be ready for golf Sunday, Perry Beckett, new golf pro, announced.

WIN PRIZES

LOUDONVILLE — Miss Leona Yuncker was hostess Tuesday evening to the Elite club. Prizes of war stamps were won by Mrs. Cleo Fisher and Mrs. Agnes Stockman.

LICENSE ISSUED

MILLERSBURG — A marriage license has been issued here to Marvin T. Dunn, 46, Buffalo, N. Y. military policeman, and Esther Stucker, 30, Fredericksburg, demonstrator.

Have Leads in Madison Play Tonight

Seated in the picture is Mary Louise Harrod. Standing, left to right, are: Jean Price, Carlton Trease, Richard Gross and Ruth Blumenschein. Eileen Stout will direct the play.

RITES SATURDAY

Hold Funeral Services For Tornado Victim.

NEW LONDON—Funeral services for Arthur C. Cawrse, 62, prominent Clarksfield township farmer killed in Tuesday night's tornado, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Wakeman Congregational church. Rev. William Smith, of Oberlin, a family friend, will officiate. Burial will be in South Clarksfield cemetery. New London Masonic lodge, of which Cawrse was a member, will hold services at the grave.

Surviving are the widow Jessie; three sons, Wallace, Milton and Maurice; eight grandchildren; a sister, Miss Elizabeth Cawrse of Elyria; and four brothers, William and Leonard of Lakewood; George of Elyria; and Edwin, of Cleveland.

For several years he had been affiliated with the Ohio Farmers Dairy Association in Cleveland, only just returning to the farm this year. At the time of his death he was vice president of the milk co-operative.

OVER THE TOP

BUCYRUS—Crawford county's second victory loan drive passed the goal by $300,000 as workers turned in their reports to W. A. Blicke, general chairman, this week, concluding a 15-day campaign to raise $2,880,000.

Total sales of $3,161,972.75 were reported with three townships still to report.

WINS CITATION

BUCYRUS — Cited for his efforts in the country war bond drive, L. J. Bechtel of New Washington, was named "Man of the Month" by the Standard Oil company and has been designated to receive the Minute Man citation.

Small-Time Thief Dies in Chair For Refugee's Murder

OSSINING, N. Y. —(INS)—Eh Shonbrun, dapper small-time thief, went to his death in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison protesting his innocence in the murder of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich, prison officials revealed today.

Shonbrun walked the "last mile" with the Rev. Bernard Martin. Shortly afterward John Cullen, the "forgotten man" in the case also paid the supreme penalty for complicity in the crime.

Just before he began the slow march from his cell to the execution chamber, Shonbrun was given a letter from his sweetheart, Madeline Webb, now serving life imprisonment for her part in luring the middle-aged refugee to her death. The letter was destroyed immediately afterward.

Before being strapped into the chair Shonbrun requested that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey be told that he was innocent of any crime. Cullen remained stoical to the end maintaining that he did not deserve "such a hard rap."

STOCK MARKET SHOWS UPWARD TRENDS AGAIN

Fractional Advances Fairly Well Distributed Over List of Issues.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances were fairly well distributed in today's early stock market transactions.

At a moderately active opening gainers included Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, U. S. Steel, Paramount Pictures, Western Union, Air Reduction, Public Service of N. J., and Southern Railway.

Market analysts studied public spending figures in their search for trend clues. Noted was the Dunn & Bradstreet summary indicating a less than usual post-Easter let-down in store sales. Retail dollar volume this week was placed at 7 to 13 per cent above the like 1942 period. The federal reserve board also estimated last week's department store distribution on a nation-wide basis exceeded the comparable week a year ago by 29 per cent.

CHICAGO (AP)— Grain showed little change in a quiet opening today, but the undertone was steady. There was no overnight news to influence prices.

Wheat started ¼ lower to ⅛ higher. May $1.44-1.43⅞, July $1.43¾-⅞, and corn was unchanged at ceilings, May $1.05.

THEATERS

Runyon Story.

Damon Runyon's "It Ain't Hay" newest Abbott and Costello comedy, comes to the Ohio tomorrow. The new comedy, first to be released since the two comedians were honored as the nation's No. 1 box office champions, has Bud and Lou involved in a strange case of mistaken identity. Two horses, however, are the principals in the error, one a nag and the other a handicap favorite. When the comics are suspected of substituting one steed for the other, the action starts to click. Romance and music are included in the plot and are contributed by Grace McDonald and Leighton Noble's orchestra.

Opens At Madison.

Carole Landis, George Murphy and Anne Shirley are starred in "The Powers Girl" Charles R. Rogers' film opening tomorrow at the Madison. The plot unfolds when Ellen Evans, a small-town girl played by Miss Shirley, is expelled from the local high school because she appears in a compromising magazine photograph Ellen heads for the big city of New York to join her sister Kay, played by Miss Landis. Kay hopes to become one of John R. Powers' models, and is trying to achieve her goal through the help of Jerry Hendricks (George Murphy). However, Ellen falls for Jerry, throwing a damper on Kay's chances for success. Alan Mowbray plays the part of the beauty connoisseur. Hal Roach presents "Taxi Mister," co-attraction at the Madison.

Teamed Again.

Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce team up once again as Sherlock Holmes and Doctor Watson in "Sherlock Holmes and the Secret Weapon," now playing at the Park. The story opens with Holmes getting a youthful inventor out of Switzerland, being forced to keep one step in front of the Gestapo all the way. British keep a constant guard over the inventor, but he falls into the hands of the enemy, and is tortured in an attempt to make him talk. It is then that Holmes, accompanied by Dr Watson displays his ability in locating the missing man and capturing the Nazi agents. Co-attraction is "Thundering Trails," starring "The Three Mesquiteers."

Comedy Opens.

"The Palm Beach Story," starring Claudette Colbert and Joel McCrea, opens tomorrow at the Ritz. The story centers around a couple in love but about to be divorced, nevertheless, Miss Colbert decides that it is about time to call it quits after her husband, a talented inventor, fails to make himself a financial success. She leaves him and heads for Palm Beach. While enroute she meets the "richest man in the world" (Rudy Vallee) and Vallee falls in love with her. Vallee invites her to his estate for a visit, and she accepts. However, her husband (McCrea), follows her there. That's when things get complicated. Co-attraction at the Ritz is "King of the Cowboys," starring Roy Rogers.

News Briefs

Dance Tonight—The Juke Box club will hold a dance at 8 p. m. today at the Y. W. C. A.

Bicycle Stolen—John Thomas, 347 West Third street, reported to police last night that his bicycle was stolen from 133 West Dickson avenue, where he was visiting friends.

No Rhubarb Sugar — No sugar can be allowed for canning rhubarb, Ration Chairman C. C. Beelman announced today in answer to dozens of daily requests for additional canning quotas.

Hearing Set—James Moore, 271 Park avenue east, today was ordered to appear in municipal court May 6 on a charge of driving through a red light at Park avenue east and Diamond street. He was cited early today by police.

Robbed By Visitor — William Zehner, 93 East Sixth street, early today reported the theft of a $68 watch and $10 from his home. He gave police the description of a woman he accused of taking the watch and money.

Colored Men Leave — A small contingent of colored draftees from selective service boards No. 2 and 3 left the Erie station at noon today for the Ft. Harrison army induction center. Less than a dozen were in the group.

Party Scheduled — The annual Mother-Daughter party of the South Main Evangelical Sunday school will be held in the church parlors Friday, May 7, at 8 p. m. The Gleaners class will be in charge.

Cubs To Meet—Cub Pack 2 will meet today at 7 p. m. at Central Methodist church with Cubmaster Howard Stauffer presiding. Presentation of the new pack charter and new certificates to the cubs will highlight the program.

Chorus To Rehearse — A rehearsal of the massed choirs which will participate in the opening concert of National Music Week here will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church.

Formulate Plans—Newly elected officers and the board of directors of the Co Operative club met last night at the home of Gordon Schwan, chairman of the board, to discuss plans and appoint committees for the coming year. M. L. Barnet, president, presided.

Coupe Unclaimed — F. A. Russell, Bellville R. D. 1, reported to sheriff's officers yesterday that a small coupe with a 22-rifle in it had been parked near Bellville for the past two days. License of the car was issued outside the Mansfield area, officers said.

Meets Sunday — A meeting of the Vesper club will be held at the Y.W.C.A. Sunday at 5 p. m. Miss Anna Mert, president, will present a devotional reading and the remainder of the time will be spent in social activities. Miss Amanda Remy and Miss Minerva Hoover compose the supper committee.

Sentence Suspended—Taken into custody early today by police on a charge of assault and battery, Clifford J. McCumber, 75 Park avenue east, was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail by Municipal Judge H. H. Schettler who suspended the sentence on the condition of good behavior. The charge was filed by McCumber's wife, Marguerite.

No License—Josephine Carrie, 22, of 181 East Third street, was cited to appear in Mansfield municipal court Monday at 9:30 a. m. for failure to have a driver's license. She was arrested following a minor traffic accident in which her car collided with a car driven by Richard R. Schacherer, 16, of 93 Clifton avenue, yesterday on U. S. Route 42, one mile west of the city. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Nap Costly—Fred Julian, Shelby, employe at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, told police a colored man robbed him of $300 about 7 a. m. today while he slept in his car on East Sixth street. Julian said he was awakened by the thief and chased him to Sixth street and Franklin avenue where he lost him. The Shelby man told officers he arrived in Mansfield too early for work and was sleeping until work time.

Reviews 'Human Comedy'—Mrs. W. E. Benninghoff of Cleveland, will review William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy" today at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church. The review, being sponsored by the Women's association of the First Congregational church, is the third in a series designed to enable those who can not attend afternoon reviews to attend.

LEWIS SPURNS BACK-TO-WORK ORDER OF FDR

Insists on Wage Agreement, Indicates All Mines To Close at Midnight.

WLB as a "packed court," said that the "Little Steel formula" would prevent the WLB "from making a decision upon a basis of equity and justice" in considering the miners' demands for a $2 a day wage increase.

Lewis indicated that the board would turn down the miners' wage request because of what he said was "its fixed mathematical measuring device" of the "Little Steel formula."

He said that such a WLB decision would be a "contravention of the very principles of equity and justice upon which American justice is predicated."

"It turns a deaf ear to the pleas of a half million of America's finest industrial soldiers and their several million dependent wives and children who daily find their living standards being lowered to the point of despair by mounting prices of food stuffs and the essentials of life," Lewis said in the telegram to the White House.

"These American coal miners are good Americans," the UMW chieftain insisted. "More than 75,000 of their number are scattered among the far-flung battlefields of the world in the armed services of their country."

Lewis, again defending the miners' patriotism, said that they would "gladly give their lives if need be" for the nation. Then he quoted coal production records showing that the miners had produced more than 630,000,000 tons of coal last year and he predicted that with "a depleted labor force" the miners will turn out more than 700,000,000 tons this year.

"We want an agreement," Lewis concluded in the telegram. "We want to work. The bituminous coal operators have willfully blocked the making of an agreement. We respectfully advise that in our judgment the making of an agreement through a renewal of collective bargaining is the logical means of providing justice and equity to all parties."

Lewis said that the mine workers "believe they are entitled to receive just, equitable and fair consideration."

In that fashion, Lewis put the next move in the strike deadlock squarely up to the president.

Reporters pressed Lewis for an elaboration on the telegram but he said he had "no comment." It was typical that he replied to the president only by indirect statements. It forecast, too, that he would allow the miners to walk out at midnight without any formal strike call unless the White House gives him some assurance that he can get the agreement he wants.

Lewis later announced that he would attend the meeting later in the day between the anthracite operators and the miners.

With these developments, the threat of a coal strike became more real. It is now less than 12 hours until the strike deadline at midnight and only some 22 hours until President Roosevelt's deadline expires at 15 a. m. tomorrow. A coal strike would be certain to cripple vital war production within a few days.

President Roosevelt, in Washington, appealed to miners now engaging "in silent strikes" to return to work and he gave them until Saturday at 10 a. m., to get back on the job. His time limit was so dated, however, that it would apply not only to the 80,000 coal workers now idle but to every man in Lewis' union who participates in a general walkout tonight, if one occurs.

Lewis, after receiving the back-to-work ultimatum in a telegram from the nation's commander-in-chief, held a long, secret meeting with his chief advisers in a downtown hotel. It was decided at this conference to call the policy committee of the union into the special session today.

Meanwhile, awaiting the conference, the rank-and-file miners who compose the policy committee mulled around the lobby of the hotel. They said privately that they were "all-out" for a general strike.

Their chief topic of discussion comprised speculation as to whether army troops already were on the move toward a march into the coal fields. Reports have circulated, and charges have been made by UMW spokesmen, that the G-2 (intelligence) of the army has been planning for months to seize the rich diggings of the bituminous coal industry.

Complete Walkout Looms In Ohio

COLUMBUS — (UP) — A complete walkout of Ohio's 25,000 soft coal miners was expected tonight by operators of coal fields in the eastern part of the state.

Approximately 3,700 members of the United Mine Workers failed to report for work at six operations in the eastern coal fields.

The largest work stoppage was at the Powhatan mine of the Powhatan Mining company when 1,065 stopped work.

Pennsylvania Miners Ready to Back Lewis

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — President Roosevelt's back-to-work appeal to striking coal miners apparently went unheeded in western Pennsylvania today, as leaders of union locals reaffirmed their determination not to work until John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, gives the word.

There were no reports of any strikers returning to work.

F. A. Norman, president of a union local near Belle Vernon in the Fayette county coal and coke region, said:

"If President Roosevelt came down to this patch himself and told these men to go back to work without an agreement, without a contract, without something in the way of an increase, they'd tell him:

"'You go back and get an order from John L. Lewis. Then we'll go back to work.'"

23,000 Set To Strike In Illinois

CHICAGO — (INS) — Despite President Roosevelt's demand that the coal labor dispute be settled peaceably, 23,000 United Mine Workers in Illinois today continued preparations to cease work at midnight tonight unless their contract is signed.

The UMW position was summed up by Hugh White, vice president of the Illinois district, who said:

"The situation remains unchanged. The miners of Illinois will not work without a contract."

Hard Coal Miners Still Undecided

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. — (INS) — Indecision gripped the hard coal region today over what action Pennsylvania's 90,000 anthracite miners would take when their contract expires tonight.

Word was awaited from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, over whether there would be a month's extension of the two-year contract.

With all mine union officials attending the contract negotiations in New York with the anthracite operators, there was no way of ascertaining what action the miners would take. If precedent is followed, the miners will halt their work at midnight unless a new contract is signed today or a month's extension in the present contract is agreed upon as was done in 1941.

ODT Declares City Has Too Many Cabs, Calls for Reduction

ODT regional office at Cleveland is expected to be here to submit recommendations to the group.

ODT figures submitted to the mayor showed that Mansfield, with about 40,000 population, has 34 taxis while Canton with a population of well over 100,000, has only 27 cabs in operation.

Steubenville, a little larger than Mansfield, has 12 taxis, while Massillon, with about 30,000 residents, has six cabs in use.

Bates said it was probable that each of the Mansfield firms will be asked to store some of its cars so no company will be hit harder than others.

BELIEVE FRENCH ACCORD NEARING

Observers Say Giraud Sends Invitation to De Gaulle.

LONDON — (AP) — Gen. Henri Honore Giraud and Gen. Charles De Gaulle are close to agreement between their French factions for a united war effort, it was believed today after Giraud issued an invitation to the Fighting French leader for a conference.

The formal invitation was en route to London. It was understood Giraud proposed they meet at some undisclosed location in French territory besides Algiers. Observers believed the invitation would not have been made if an agreement was to be delayed indefinitely.

BLAME VANDALS

Police Say Boys Started $30,000 Theater Fire.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Juvenile vandals were blamed for a blaze that swept the lobby and office of the imperial theater early today, causing damage estimated at $30,000.

Battalion Chief Clarence Ryan who estimated loss, said investigation showed that the fire was started by pouring inflammable fluid over seats and carpets of the Kinsman road motion picture house.

HIKE POINTS ON POPULAR MEATS

Beef, Veal and Pork Values Advanced Effective at Midnight Sunday.

continuing rate of 8 points per pound (except 10 inch rib which is 7) instead of round steak at 9. End pork chops remain at 7, lamb chops at 8, lamb rib chops at 7, and ham butt roasts at 7.

Widely-rumored reductions in luncheon meats, however, failed to materialize. And despite contrary forecasts, beef hamburger did not increase, remaining at 5 points per pound.

The order was the first major change in the scale of meat rations since beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork were put under rationing on March 29. Minor adjustments in sausage points were the only previous alterations.

The new decree made a few changes in canned fish and cooking oils, but cheese and butter remained at 8 points per pound; lard, margarine and shortening at 5. Salad and cooking oils, however, were reduced from 6 to 5 points a pint (or pound).

Canned sea mussels, which formerly were in a general category requiring 7 points per pound, were cut to 1. Caviar and fish roe came down, too, from 7 to 3 points on a pound basis.

The new point values will be applicable Sunday only to red E and F coupons in the No. 2 ration book. A, B, C and D stamps will expire at midnight tonight. Blue D, E and F coupons for processed fruits and vegetables also expire tonight, and minor changes in the canned goods point values also may be announced over the weekend.

Since the changes took place during the week-end that bridges the April and May meat stamps, the only valid stamps this Saturday will be the E's, at the rate of 16 points per person. On Sunday, however, the F stamps become valid, along with the E's, which will remain good until the end of the month.

Another change was to exempt from rationing bouillon cubes and meat extracts or concentrates. Canned bulk sausage and canned Vienna sausage came down a point. Permission was granted butchers to include in hamburger "heel of round and skirts" as well as other scraps and discards.

Commenting on the unchanged status of sausage (except minor changes of types containing less than 50 per cent meat), OPA said the over-abundance of sausage on the market was due to overproduction and not to abnormally low public demand. A press statement said any cut in sausage point values merely would encourage diversion of regular meat to sausage.

War Board Urges County Farmers to Plant All They Can

Richland county farmers were urged today by the county agricultural war board to take a chance on this season being a good one for crops and plant all the acreage they can possibly handle under the best conditions.

Guy L. Taylor, chairman of the war board, said there is still enough time for farmers to revise their crop plans and plant more acreage to food crops than they intended.

Classed as vital war crops in the county area were soybeans, potatoes, and vegetable crops, including sweet corn, tomatoes, and peas.

Although the cold, wet weather during most of April delayed the preparation of land, favorable planting and growing seasons may yet develop, permitting the harvesting of bigger crops than anticipated, the board pointed out.

"The county can meet or exceed its crop goals if enough farmers will volunteer their land, labor and resources for the 1943 food victory drive," Taylor said.

Volunteer labor from the Mansfield area is expected to help county farmers solve some of their planting and harvesting problems.

Farmers who plant three or more acres of potatoes and other vegetable crops may qualify for payments under the Triple-A program, according to county AAA representatives.

NAZIS STIFFEN DEFENSES BUT YANKS ADVANCE

Take Hill in Sharp Fight, as Germans Report Soviet Drive in Caucasus.

Beja, crushing three Nazi counterattacks, but ran into difficulties in a battle at Djebel Tahent, 16 miles southeast of Mateur.

"The doughboys were finally pushed off two foothills south of the Djebel, which were so bald that the desperately fighting infantrymen could find no cover from sweeping artillery fire except occasional small boulders," the correspondent said.

A military spokesman declared, however, that the Nazis failed to crack U. S. lines south of the hill.

Allied headquarters said the Americans made "further local advances" in their push toward Bizerte, and announced that Lieut.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British First army held all but one small section of its positions before the Tunis plain.

Simultaneously, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army, driving up the coastal region along a 30-mile front, gained its objective in a renewed surge against strong Axis mountain defenses.

"An enemy counter attack in this sector achieved slight success," the Allied communique said.

On the Tunisian front, the Americans of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., were reported locked in heavy fighting with the Germans on Bald Hill (Djebel Ajred), 16 miles west of Mateur, while the British First army sought to break through the enemy's mountain defenses guarding the Medjerda valley leading to Tunis.

"On the First army front, there was various bitter fighting," Allied headquarters said.

The bloody Jewel Bou Aoukaz, scene of two costly British attempts to break through, is the last major barrier defending the Tunis plain.

In the skies, Allied bombers and fighters continuously blasted Axis troops and struck at enemy shipping in the Gulf of Tunis and the Sicilian straits.

"Two vessels were sunk and direct hits scored on others," the Allied command said.

"During these attacks, strong forces of enemy fighters were encountered, 14 of them being destroyed." Ten Allied planes were lost.

French troops attacking on both ends of the 100-mile western barrier were reported to have captured three more hilltops.

Crack Jap Screen To Attack Barracks

(By Associated Press)

Allied warplanes, breaking through a strong screen of Japanese Zero fighters violently attacked Japanese barracks, hangars and seaplanes at the former Dutch naval base of Amboina 600 miles north of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said today.

Three of 15 Japanese interceptors were shot down or damaged, a communique said, and the entire formation of U. S. Liberators returned safely.

Coupled with this attack, Dutch-manned Mitchells set fires at Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor. Other Allied planes struck at the Tanimbar islands and New Guinea.

Link Tunisia Climax To Generals' Visit

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The approaching climax in the battle of Tunisia provides a significant background for the Washington visit of the two leading American military figures in the China-India-Burma war theater, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell and Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault.

They were called home, Secretary Stimson indicated, in line with war department policy of "periodic visits" by high ranking officers long in the field.

Despite official reticence as to the significance of the Stilwell-Channault summons, the global war situation presents some obvious features of importance to their commands. The campaign to clear the French African hump of Axis forces is approaching completion. Once it is cleared, Allied use of the short-line Mediterranean route from the Atlantic to the Indian ocean can be restored to ease Allied problems of transport to China and India.

Yanks Capture Jap Guadalcanal Patrol

WASHINGTON—(UP)—American fliers have pounded four Japanese bases in the Solomons in their continuing aerial offensive to keep the enemy pinned down behind their southwest Pacific defense line, the navy reported today.

American troops on Guadalcanal meanwhile wiped out a Japanese patrol of one officer and eight men seeking to escape from the island at a point about 25 miles southwest of Henderson airfield.

Men Who Made Forced Landings Go to Cairo.

ANKARA, Turkey — (AP) — Sixteen United States airmen and six British fliers interned in Turkey after forced landings on Turkish soil left Ankara today for Cairo.

They were freed under an agreement among the Turkish government and belligerents providing for the release of interned Allied and Axis airmen.

Some Americans had been in Turkey since June 12, 1942, when they were forced down during an attack upon Rumanian oil field objectives.

deposit of the retirement fund and the quota fixed for each county by the Fourth Federal Reserve district.

Reports from over the state indicated today that Akron and Summit county have oversubscribed their goal in the War Loan drive by 106 per cent, and sales are still mounting. Robert S. Saalfield, campaign chairman, reported today bond purchases totaled $40,125,540. The city and county passed their original goal of $19,500,000 last week and yesterday leaders of the drive decided to boost the mark to $35,000,000. That goal was passed by nightfall.

Meanwhile in Washington unofficial estimates today were that when the second war loan drive ends Saturday night there will be between $16,000,000,000 and $17,000,000,000 in the treasury till. The goal was $13,000,000,000.

Undersecretary Daniel W. Bell urged last-minute investors to get their money on the line before the deadline.

"The record breaking second war loan drive ends at midnight tomorrow," Bell said. "Anybody in the country who has not yet lent his dollars while his fighting fellow Americans are giving their lives can have that last minute opportunity to contribute to this greatest financing program in history by buying the securities sometime tomorrow. And for the convenience of everybody, we will credit to the second war loan drive any mail orders for securities that are post-marked by midnight tomorrow."

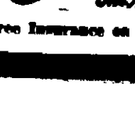
Multi-Facet

DIAMONDS . . . . Presented Exclusively by

SHAW'S

Multi-Facet
Cut just like the usual 58 facets, but with 98; 40 extra facets around edge (more than 40 in some sizes)
Ordinary Cut Diamond; 58 facets; rough edge or girdle

Available in Smart New Rings from $125



Before they are cut, even the most fabulous diamonds appear dull and lifeless. Only after cutting do diamonds acquire fire and brilliance. The finer the cutting, the more brilliant the diamond. Ordinary diamonds are cut with 58 facets, regardless of price. These facets appear on the top surface, and on the underside of the diamonds, with the sides neglected. The MULTI-FACET* method of cutting adds 40 facets around the sides of the diamond. This cutting emphasizes the color; therefore, no off-color diamonds are used. MULTI-FACET eliminates the rough edge, helping to prevent chipping while being set or worn. The extra facets provide a myriad of light-catching surfaces . . .

This store is proud to have the opportunity to present MULTI-FACET for this locality. We are introducing this new acquisition with an offering of MULTI-FACET diamonds, set in distinguished rings, from $125 up.

TAKE-OFF FOR TOKYO'S TOLD BY TREGASKIS

U. S. Fliers Launch Land Planes From Pitching Deck of Carrier Hornet.

the wave-tops. For a few moments she rose, then sagged again.

Again there were groans along our deck, and cries of "No, not yet"—and then, at last, the bomber got her purchase and levelled, gaining speed and power; and she lifted and soared off into the west.

A marine standing next to me ran a feverish hand over his face. "That makes me feel good all over," he said, as the plane disappeared into the gray sky, Tokyo-bound.

And so the fifth, and sixth, and seventh planes took off, looking like awkward ducklings with their three-wheel landing gears—never used on the regulation carrier planes; and very cumbersome with their wide 56-foot wings spreading across the carrier's deck; and their high double tails and bulky bodies filled with high explosive and extra gasoline for their long, heroic jaunt.

The bombers continued to take off in a steady stream.

Now the seas were growing higher. The 60-foot prow of the carrier was plunging deep into spray. Several high combers climbed her deck and sent a sheet of water rolling down among the remaining bombers.

It was really rough. Green water was crashing over our bow, riding as high as our navigation bridge. Steel uprights on our midship deck were bent like bows. The captain's coat was soaking wet; and our stacks were dripping with salt water.

The carrier slowed, then increased her speed, then slowed again; she was trying to find the speed at which there would be a minimum of pitching.

The other ships of the task force had fallen behind. Now only our cruiser and the carrier remained, plunging on towards Tokyo. We had only about 800 miles to go to get there.

Our gun crews were on sharp alert. We were traveling through waters infested by Jap patrol craft.

And then the word went around—"Aircraft, 30,000 yards Bearing, 300." I heard the young ensign behind me repeat the words to his gun crew and heard them moving closer to their gun.

But the alarm was needless. "Identified as friendly," said the ensign. And the gun crews relaxed, turned their attention back to the carrier.

And so the time came for launching the last plane—and we were still ploughing through headseas towards Tokyo. The last plane wobbled down the deck and paused, waiting for a gaint swell to pass by.

While the bomber paused, a second gigantic wave rolled into the carrier and crashed high over the flight deck. With field glasses I could see the spray sweeping through the propellers of the plane.

But the motors did not stall, and a few seconds later, the aircraft moved slowly into the wind, steadied, then rose abruptly into the air.

Late in the afternoon, we picked up a news broadcast from Los Angeles. It quoted Japanese shortwave broadcasts as saying that Tokyo had been bombed by American aircraft.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, APRIL 30, 1943.

Which Has Greater Power?

TIME for a show-down between Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the United States, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is rapidly approaching.

Thus far Mr. Roosevelt has made only a "friendly appeal" to miners, asking them to resume work, or continue on their jobs, and explaining that suspension of coal production would be disastrous to the national war effort.

The miners, or at least some of them, reply: "We won't go back to work without a contract unless Lewis says so" —and the contract expires at midnight tonight, with around 80,000 miners already on strike.

Not until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, according to yesterday's "friendly appeal," will Mr. Roosevelt take action as president of the United States and commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces.

At that time, he says, unless striking miners have returned to work and others continue on their jobs, he will move—with all powers vested in him—to avert the disaster of cutting off the coal supply from war industries.

Meanwhile it is promised that full investigation will be made of miners' claims that food costs in mine regions have mounted so greatly that present earnings are insufficient to meet living costs. That, also, must be considered—but the paramount issue at the moment is whether John L. Lewis is in position to exercise greater authority than Commander-In-Chief Franklin D. Roosevelt, and that will be known by tomorrow noon.

On the outcome of this contention will also rest the decision as to whether the interests of any minority group are to take precedence over the welfare of the entire nation in time of war—in fact this may be a determining factor in whether the war will be won or lost.

Mansfield Shares In Music Week

AMERICA does well, in the midst of strife, to keep in mind as many as possible of the fine things of life, and among the great gifts of God is the sense of hearing which provides opportunity for enjoyment of music.

Mansfield's preparations to share in observance of National Music week, which is to start Sunday, are on a scale befitting this community's increasing musical appreciation, and the co-operation of a large number of this city's musical organizations gives assurance of the excellence of the various scheduled programs—vocal and instrumental.

Opening with a sacred concert at the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon, with evening programs Monday through Thursday at John Simpson high school auditorium, and concluding with a band concert in Central park Friday evening, the week promises such a series of musical treats as Mansfielders have seldom been privileged to enjoy and of which many will be highly appreciative.

Catlett Wins His Point

CONGRATULATIONS to John L. Catlett, Richland county representative in the state legislature, for his successful fight to get reconsideration of the bill intended to stiffen punishment of "numbers" racketeers.

First house action on the bill was a turn-down, by a small margin, so Catlett went into action for reconsideration, and, as a result, the bill was passed, 78 to 31.

People who do not come in contact with it may not realize that "numbers" is probably the most vicious, lucrative and crook-ridden gambling racket with which many cities have been infested and which present laws seem inadequate to stop.

Comment by Mansfield's Chief of Police Bates is that under provisions of the law just passed by the house he believes it would be possible to "clean up the numbers games"—which would be a highly desirable accomplishment in this and other Ohio cities.

Axis Subs Still An Obstacle

AS THE ALLIED clean-up in North Africa moves swiftly toward an end, the program for invasion of Europe is being mapped, with one formidable obstacle to be overcome —the submarine menace.

There is now no doubt that Rommel will be eliminated from Africa, probably by annihilation or surrender. An attempted "Dunkerque" is possible, but it is extremely doubtful if many Axis survivors or much of their equipment could run the gauntlet of the Allied air forces and navy in the narrow Sicilian strait. In either event, the Allies are likely to regain control of the passage and ease their supply problem to the central Mediterranean.

But the main supply problem lies out in the stormy reaches of the Atlantic, where Allied shipping, whether bound from America to western Europe, or from America and England to Gibraltar or the Cape of Good hope, is subject to Germany's supreme effort in submarine warfare.

Supplies have been getting through in large quantities to England and to Africa, in the latter case sufficient to maintain the smashing offensive in progress in Tunisia. In England, a great invasion force of British, American and Dominion troops is fully trained and ready to go.

There have been promises that Europe will be invaded as soon as Tunisia is cleaned up. June could bring Hitler's Waterloo, too.

Soldiers Home On Furlough

THERE is always surprise and pleasure when soldier boys reach home on brief furloughs—from training camps or even from the battle front itself. They seem so competent and confident, even if they are just out of a hospital and recovering from wounds.

Mostly they seem to be glowing with health, and their spirit is admirable. They are confident, and know they are going to win, which is a great thing for morale on the home front, not to mention the distant battle front.

All this seems very different from former wars, when casual furloughs were almost unknown. It gives the civilian a new feeling about the war, and even a feeling of participation in it. Men and women in the factories, making the guns and shells, are stimulated. More than ever before, perhaps, the fighting job is seen as a united effort.

A Cleveland man suggests that permits to buy liquor be limited to persons who submit proof that 10 per cent of their wages is being put into war bonds. Some folks have such odd ideas.

STAR BOARDER FROM NOW ON!

Estimating Hitler's Fuel Supply

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE RATHER STARTLING DEBATE in Washington over whether we are encountering difficulties with our supply of high octane aviation gasoline gives to wonder how our number one antipathy, Herr Hitler, is getting along with his fuel supply.

America is by far the world's greatest producer of petroleum and gasoline, and the biggest industrial nation. If we strike snags (or do we?) what must be the trials of the Hun whose supplies of oil—apart from what he piled up before the war and stole from occupied countries —come from the comparatively small production of the low-grade Rumanian wells and from synthetic processes applied to coal?

Of course the Germans normally don't use 100 octane gasoline, which is for specially designed American engines. However, the problem of ordinary aviation gas still remains.

We don't know just what Hitler's gasoline resources are, but as long ago as last summer military experts noted indications the Nazis were running very short.

The great storage of oil and gas which he made in preparation for the war, and the stocks he took from France and other ravaged countries, undoubtedly are depleted.

The Germans likely are making most of their lubricants and gasoline synthetically from coal. That's a slow and arduous process, for it takes a lot of coal to produce a gallon of oil, and much more for aviation gasoline. Probably the production of 100 octane gasoline in practical quantities would be out of the question.

Of course, the Nazis have built their airplane engines for a much lower grade of gasoline. They use a direct injection engine, that is, one without a carburetor. The result is that they get more power with their ordinary gasoline.

STILL, figure it as you will, the oil experts feel fairly certain Hitler is suffering from a serious shortage of gas. That undoubtedly is one of the reasons why his air force has been lying doggo for months now. Not even the all-important North African show has drawn very much air strength from the continent, and thus far the Germans have taken the bombardment of western Europe lying down.

That doesn't mean, however, that the Luftwaffe is out of commission. What it presumably does mean is the Fuehrer is conserving his depleted store of gasoline and other resources either for one more great offensive in an effort to achieve a killing, or for purely defensive purposes. Possibly he has both these things in mind, for it's a certainty that he is preparing to meet an allied invasion.

Oil men say that lack of high grade lubricating oil may be hampering Hitler about as much as the scarcity of gasoline. The Rumanian petroleum is too low grade for delicate machinery, so that the Nazis have to produce much of this from coal.

Some observers go so far as to claim that shortage of oil and gas will beat Hitler. There's no doubt that one of his chief objects in making his attacks on the Russian Caucasus was to reach oil, and if he makes an onslaught this spring it may easily be another drive against the Caucasian gateway to the petroleum fields.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, April 30, 1923.

Firemen at Central station started annual housecleaning, believing it would be last in old city hall (site of present Walpark building).

Dr. Charles L. Shafer underwent appendicitis operation at Lakeside hospital, Cleveland.

Thirteen-year-old Anna Kopical, East Mansfield, scored next to highest in state music memory contest in Columbus.

Valentine Steinbeck sold interest in barbershop to Fred W. Hien.

Appointment of Earl C. Pollock and George Nagle to Richland county board of elections was announced by Thad H. Brown, secretary of state.

C. Hegnauer moved from Chalfern apartments to 214 Rowland avenue.

J. C. Edwards was awarded contract to haul mail between postoffice and railway stations.

Stage production of "Lightnin'" was attraction at Opera House, with $2.50 as top price.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Louisiana Territory was purchased from France on April 30, 1803. For $15,000,000 this country received territory extending from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada. Roughly, the cost was $12 a square mile.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Efficiency Question

THESE modern working women, swinging down to the shipyards in their jeans, marching beside men along the assembly line, riveting, welding—they're the marvel of the 20th century. Fifty years ago their protected grandmas were probably swooning or simpering on the nearest masculine shoulder. Today Betty Lou is walking off with Brother Bill's honors.

OR IS SHE?

Mr. H. L. W. wonders. Yes, it's a real letter, and the writer is one of the biggest shots in the defense parade, with thousands of feminine employes. Moreover, he's an ardent booster for his nimble-fingered Amazons. Yet they still have him puzzled and he's passing the riddle along.

"IN SPITE OF ALL THE WOMEN I'VE HIRED," says he, "I STILL WONDER IF THEY MAKE AS EFFICIENT WORKERS AS MEN.

"I admit they put on a great show. There is no denying they move faster than men, catch on to things quickly, work more intensely, are more skillful in many precision jobs. But, in the long run, are they as valuable employes?

"As I see it, efficiency means a lot more than being quick, shrewd or enthusiastic. And you can't reckon it in one day or one month's performance. It's the general attitude and long grind that tell the story, and that's where I think women fall down.

"There's no doubt that women like their jobs—maybe they are a relief after housework. But few women ever learn to take things in their stride the way men do. A man becomes part of his organization; a woman is always an individualist. She hates to take advice and as for giving her a bawling out, just try it once! Even the brightest woman seems to think she is doing you a big favor and she takes her own time in doing it. Also, she wants to do it in her own way or not at all.

"WHY IS IT THAT AS SOON AS A WOMAN TAKES A JOB SHE BEGINS TO ACT AS IF THE GENERAL PUBLIC WAS SIMPLE MINDED, PARTICULARLY ALL MALES?

"Of course there are countless exceptions, and my hat's off to them. The country can't be grateful enough to its women for the way they are carrying on. But with all the quickness and smartness, I wonder if they are really as efficient as some big, dumb lunkhead who doesn't know half as much but manages to keep his shirt on.

"What do you readers think about it?"

Let's ask them, H. L. W. Will they rise to it? Watch them! My hunch is, you've started a riot call! So how goes it, Mr. and Mrs. Jones?

What's your personal rating of the modern working woman, whatever her age or job? Do you think that she's as efficient in the long run as a man? Is she as willing to adjust . . . as easy to work with . . . or is she bossy, self-centered, hard to handle?

As for that last beef, brother, it's well to remember that most working women have spent their previous years pushing Dad and Son around or helping the Boss keep up his front and not mix his blonds. So it's hardly surprising if they continue to think that the big boys are still damp behind the ears.

They might even be right at that! So here's your chance, Henrietta, to shoot the works and tell them what.

Dave Boone Says:

THE OPA says there is a black market in whisky now, and promises price ceilings to break it up. Well, a whisky black market operator can learn something from the meat, vegetable and chicken black markets. The chicken market can teach it tricks it never thought of, for example.

* * *

You don't need coupons or ration books to get chicken. Not at all. All that's required is a search warrant with maybe a shotgun.

* * *

I don't know how far OPA will go with its whisky rules but a lot of consumers will object to any order to bring their thirsts in and have them checked every three months.

* * *

Whisky is so scarce in some states that they have "rum lines." Buyers form in line every day and even use "stooges" and "repeaters." When the day's quota is exhausted the line breaks up and reforms around daybreak next morning. It's things like this that drive men to drink.

* * *

It looks to me like prohibition was lifting its head again. A lot of folks who plan ahead are down in the cellar looking over those coils, rubber tires and jars again.

Long-Haired Boys Score Victory Over Somervell and Save Nelson

(The "Brass Ring," good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, is awarded today to the Long-Haired Boys of the WPB Planning Board.)

WASHINGTON—Appearing before the Truman committee the other day, Gen. B. B. Somervell testified that about 25 per cent of the army's proposed plant facilities were being cancelled.

About the same time, WPB closed approximately ten big war plants for fear of over-extension. Simultaneously CIO's Phil Murray warned that 650,000 war workers would be idle in about two months, that 25,000 aircraft workers would be laid off soon.

Behind this is the story of a long, bitter feud over war production between two government agencies diametrically opposed to each other on almost everything. On one side was the WPB Planning Board or the "Long-Haired Boys." Opposed was Gen. Somervell and the army, or the "Brass Hats."

Leaders of the Long-Haired Boys were: brilliant, cantankerous economist Bob Nathan, who has rowed with every high official in the war; mining engineer Fred Searls who once built munitions plants for the British; unpretentious Tom Blaisdell, New Deal economist since 1933.

Hated by the $1-a-year men, this group of tough-minded critics has stepped on the toes of Donald Nelson, the army, the navy—singly or in groups—in battles which have become famous in backstage Washington.

MORE than a year before Pearl Harbor came Row No. 1: to raise the war program's sights and shoot for more steel, more aluminum, more copper, more airplanes. This took months of private plugging, during which the steel, aluminum, copper companies fought almost every inch of the way. Finally Roosevelt came out for the big airplane program, and the tide for all-out production was turned.

Production Row No. 2 came in March and April of last year and involved the problem of too many factories. By this time Pearl Harbor had aroused the nation. The army and navy were building new factories everywhere. Uninvited, the WPB planning committee stepped in, told Gen. Somervell that his huge production program was heading for trouble.

"If too many factories are built," warned the Long-Haired Boys, "there won't be enough steel and copper for the actual weapons of war. Not only will we be overproduced, but we will use up our steel in factory walls and copper installations, instead of putting them in ships and tanks. Furthermore, we don't want huge ground forces without the ships to carry them."

They proposed a facility review committee to decide what factories were really needed.

Pulling Army's Hair.

THIS ROW was won by the army. Came September, however, and the Long-Haired Boys once again got in the hair of Gen. Somervell. In a lengthy report, they warned that the nation was building far too many war plants, that there was not enough raw material to keep them running, that we were using steel for factory walls we didn't need.

To this Gen. Somervell wrote Planning Chief Bob Nathan curtly, coldly:

"I can agree neither with the facts nor the conclusions of this report. They should be hidden from the eyes of thoughtful men."

In answer, unquenchable Nathan shot a barb implying that Somervell was not a "thoughtful man."

"Your contention that this report should be 'hidden from the eyes of thoughtful men,'" wrote Nathan, "is a non-sequitur."

This row finally was won by the planning board. The combined general staffs of the army and navy later agreed that there was a danger of too many factories. They curtailed Somervell's program.

Row No. 3 was fought over scheduling. The Long-Haired boys claimed you couldn't have rubber factories, escort vessels, high octane refineries, warships and Maritime commission ships all at the same time; that someone had to decide which was most important and schedule the materials to them accordingly. In this row, Somervell and Under Secretary of War Patterson told WPB's new vice-chairman Charles E. Wilson: "Charley, you'd better let production alone."

In the end, WPB and the Long-Haired boys won. And Patterson's current complaint about rubber factories being finished instead of octane refineries, belatedly proves that these should have been "scheduled" long ago.

Saving Nelson's Head.

ROW NO. 4 was over the size of the army, in which the planning board argued that we did not need the huge total of 11,000,000 men under arms, that we did not have the ships to move them, that morale would be bad if they marked time in this country. In this row, the president jumped in on the side of a big army. The Long-Haired boys lost.

Last and most spectacular row was to save the head of Donald Nelson as WPB chief. By this time the army and navy had lost so many battles to the WPB—thanks to the planning board—that they determined to get Nelson out of the picture.

How near they came, the public never knew. Actually the president signed a letter putting Bernie Baruch in charge of war production. Under him, because of his age, was to be an administrative deputy, energetic Lewis Douglas, dynamo of the War Shipping Administration.

The army figured it would control benevolent Baruch, knew Lew Douglas was the brother-in-law of Assistant Secretary of War Jack McCloy. Since Harry Hopkins had approved, everything was set.

Then suddenly the Long-Haired Boys jumped to Nelson's support. They got Wayne Coy, a potent influence with the president, to go to the White House.

Mysteriously, the story of the army's deal leaked to the press. Suddenly, Nelson fired Ferd Eberstadt. This electrified Washington. Not for months had anyone been fired. The town whooped with joy. They had nothing against Eberstadt, merely were delighted that at last somebody got tough. Old Don Nelson, they decided, had taken a new lease on life.

What had happened was that the astute Long-Haired Boys knew the president didn't like Eberstadt, knew he would be pleased if Nelson fired him first, talked it over later.

This turned the tide. The president revoked his earlier letter putting Baruch and Lew Douglas in charge of war production.

This was the last victory of the Long-Haired Boys. And with it, Nelson, his official life saved, gave them an ironic reward. He demoted them. The planning board now has been relegated to a subordinate place in the WPB set-up. All of them have resigned.

Note: That is the way things sometimes operate in Washington.

Farmer's Diary

WAKING WOODS

THE WOODS floor is much alive. For weeks it seemed the drab leaf covering was holding in its grasp what life lay beneath. Snow and rain and frost had kept the gentle woodland plants waiting at the very threshold of light and fresh moist air.

Today the south wind blew through the wooded hollow, the sun shone warm. Through the mass of matted leaf and mould, thousands of pointed heads emerged. And when they could not pierce the thick fold above, the numerous stems together lifted it bodily, like a cast-off mantle, so eager was the upward surge of life.

All about were little shelves of leaves, hooving up. Out of curiosity I lifted the matted top away from a surface two feet square, just to find what varieties of wild flowers were represented in this small space.

Here were five heads of mayapple, seven stalks of bachelor buttons, twenty dainty plants of spring beauty, five dandelions—some so small I could hardly recognize them—two sprouts of spanish needles, a tiny mullen plant, some white, round bluegrass roots, a bursted wild cotton seed, with new life showing at the pointed end, a black walnut that a tender plant had broken wide—a white oak acorn, sprouting. Not a fraction of an inch but that it showed some new life, moving up.

The rich dark spongy earth had that fragrance of green plants growing that only April and early May can bring to a woodland.

Next week the drabness of seared withered leaves will fade, for above it will be the spreading bloom of blue and yellow violets, the pink and white of spring beauties, wind flowers, wild geraniums and phlox. These come before the maple buds are out or the foliage begins to cast its shade. Only one tree, the juniper near the rill, gave hints of small white petals. Next week, it too, will flaunt its dainty plumes.

Hints On Etiquette.

If you have a secretarial position, it is wise as well as good manners to keep eyes and ears open and mouth shut.

Rumors Travel Fast In Tunisia; New Type of Ration Is Appreciated.

NORTHERN TUNISIA — (By Wireless) — Our army in North Africa is still full of rumors. Most of them have to do with when we will go home.

Recently there was a rumor that President Roosevelt had made a radio address saying that the mothers, wives and sweethearts of the men in North Africa were due for a big surprise as soon as the Tunisian campaign was over. I have never been able to verify whether he made such a speech or not, but anyway the rumored remark spread and was immedately interpreted by the men as meaning that everybody was going home the minute the last German was out of Africa. Some of our troops sincerely believe that's what will happen.

THE ORANGE and tangerine season is over now. Those richly juicy North African tangerines were one of the pleasantest things of our war over here. For months we ate them by the daily dozen.

Now that they are all gone we are back to occasional canned fruit juice from America. And on British mass tables you'll find a little can of pills called ascorbic tablets, which you take daily to make up for the lack of fruits in your diet.

I STOPPED at Feriana one day to check up on what had happened to our little old hotel there and Papa and Mama and the boys, who ran it.

Well, the American army had taken over the hotel, lock, stock and barrel. Papa and Mama were still living in Tebessa, to which they fled when the Germans came. Two of the boys were back at Feriana, living in two back rooms and just sort of waiting for the army to leave.

The Germans had done very little damage to the place. Before long now all of us intruders will be gone and then Feriana can go back to its own peaceful ways.

* * *

A NEW TYPE of American ration has just showed up over here in answer to the British "compo," which small groups of traveling soldiers had found so superior to anything of ours. The new stuff is called "U Ration." It's wonderful. It has everything that is needed by four or five men out on a trip who have to fix their own meals.

It comes in a pasteboard box inside a wooden box. Everything is done up in small cans or packets just big enough to be used up at one meal.

With it come two printed menus to help guide you. I've lost No. 1 but here is No. 2: Breakfast—Tomato juice, whole-wheat cereal, sliced bacon, biscuits, coffee; dinner—bean soup, roast beef, quick-cooking rice, biscuits, lemonade, hard candy; supper—meat and vegetable stew, dried prunes, coffee, apricot spread.

The ration also includes root beer, gum drops, canned butter, lemonade, tomato juice in powdered form, and two big envelopes of toilet paper.

The tomato juice is fairly lousy, but the canned bacon is superb. God bless the U Ration!

LOTS of odd little prisoner stories are popping up.

One American officer I know had to take charge of a German aviator who had been brought down. The German had a slight wound in the forehead, so the American officer took him in a jeep to a hospital and had the wound treated. Then he put him under guard for the night, but saw to it he was free to go to the toilet whenever he wished, and even sent him some extra blankets.

The German was surly throughout. Efforts at casual conversation with him got nowhere. Obviously he was mean, and couldn't understand what was said to him anyway.

The next morning he was transferred to a prison camp. The American officer wasn't present when his guest left, but just as the German stepped into a truck he spoke to one of our orderlies, and in perfect English without an accent said:

"Corporal, tell Major Smith I deeply appreciate everything he did for me."

SORORITY CHAPTER HAS FORMAL INSTALLATION

Miss Marie Loesch, Mrs. William Cunningham and Mrs. Dale Uhlich Installed In Gamma Chapter of Tri Gamma Sorority.

FORMAL installation of new members of the Gamma chapter of Tri Gamma sorority was held Thursday night at a dinner party in the Colonial Guest House, Wooster road. Members who were installed in a candle light service were Miss Marie Loesch, Mrs. William Cunningham and Mrs. Dale Uhlich. Mrs. Jack McKnight, the sorority president, was chairman of the committee in charge of the event. She was assisted by Miss Mary Garver, Mrs. Robert Brollier and Mrs. John Launon.

Mrs. McKnight gave the welcoming speech and the oath to new members, after which she read the history and constitution of the sorority.

Bible scripture reading was read by Mrs. James Henderson. A welcoming toast was given new members by Miss Garver. Response was made by Mrs Uhlich.

Red rose corsages, the sorority's flower were presented to Miss Loesch, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Uhlich, as a gift from the chapter.

Dinner was served late in the evening at a long table centered with a floral centerpiece and lighted tapers

Prizes in bridge, the main diversion of the evening, were awarded to Mrs McKnight and Mrs. J. Anthony.

Mrs. W. M. Layton Reviews Book At Y.W.C.A. Meeting

Mrs. William Layton, who reviewed "Ambassadors in White" at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday night, was introduced by Mrs. Irl Fisher, president of the Y. W. C. A. executive board. Mrs. Layton talked to 65 who were in attendance at the review. Miss Bertha Gregory, the general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Jessie Crane, Girl Reserve secretary, were receptionists.

In her review, Mrs Layton told of yellow fever, which is very much dreaded in Central and South America, and Cuba. The disease is not communicable. Only from the venom of the female mosquito can one get the fever. Mrs. Layton told how the doctors try to keep down the attacks of yellow fever and how they often die of it. A very small percentage of persons live after having been bitten by the mosquito carrying yellow fever germs.

Miss Virginia Howard, chairman of the education committee, announced that Miss Lois MacKellar, Mansfield Public librarian, will give a series of reviews of new war books at the Y. W. C. A. May 12.

Ruth Chapter, Buys Bond At Recent Meeting

The Ruth Chapter, Order of Eastern Star decided to buy a $100 war bond at its recent luncheon meeting.

The luncheon was served by Mrs. R. W. James and her committee. The table was attractively decorated with spring flowers. Appointments were carried out in a yellow and green color scheme.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Dale Morris presided. The meeting for May will be held the 25th with Mrs Robert Flood and her committee in charge.

During the social hour, guests played bridge. Prizes in contract were won by Mrs. Irene Ritter, a guest, and Mrs. P. Hilligoff. Mrs. Lula Mae Lanmon won the auction prize.

Pavonia Club Hears Review By Mrs. Boals

Mrs. Wesley Boals reviewed the book "Gone With the Draft" at a meeting of the Pavonia Garden Literary club at the home of Mrs. Waldo Hale, R D 2.

Mrs. Hale displayed articles which had been brought to her from Nigeria. Among the articles were table service bowls made from gourds, and clothes. Luncheon was served by the hostess and the associate, Mrs. Howard Meyer, jr., with green and yellow appointments

The theme for the next meeting on May 20 at the home of Mrs Charles Henry will be "Culture of Roses."

TRUMPS FOR ENTRIES

Order of play of your trumps should not be determined solely on the base of the percentages which protect you against loss of tricks in the suit. Other elements can be just as important such as furnishing some necessary number of entries into your hand or the dummy. Seeing so many entries into the dummy, after he led the club A, West decided that the diamond suit there might be dangerous unless he removed some of said entries. So he went to work on them at once by leading a second club to the K. Facing the possibility of two losers in diamonds and two in spades, plus also perhaps one in trumps South determined to give himself every chance to prevent as many of these as possible

He saw that, even if the diamond A lay wrong he still might make his contract if he could set up a long diamond for discard of a spade, and so wanted as many chances as he could figure out Hence he came to his hand with the heart 4 to the A and led toward the diamond K. After the A killed it, East realized a spade lead could not hurt his side, as South would surely finesse if he did not have the K, so he sent forth a spade to kill those entries as soon as he could

Dummy of course, won West's K with the A and a second diamond was called, which East took with the 9 Then he led a second spade to the Q The diamond 6 was then ruffed by the heart 7, and the heart 5 led to the K. This happily dropped both remaining hostile trumps and made entry for a fourth diamond lead, ruffed by the heart 8 This set up the diamond 8 in dummy and the heart 9 to the 10 furnished an entry to use it for a discard of South's last spade The heart J then took the final trick

Pitfalls of Love

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"No, I won't," I told my father, "but I'll hurry."

"Good!" he answered, "goodbye" and hung up.

Then I turned, to find myself alone in the room, for Gus never will stay near anyone who is telephoning unless commanded to.

"Gus!" I called, and he came back on the run

"Please get Winters," I said, "and tell him my father wishes me to hurry back to the hotel as fast as I can."

"Okay," Gus said "I'll come back and get you in about one minute flat"

When I went back into the room where I had left Jack to get my purse he looked at me gloomily but offered no comment, and I hastily explained

"Father wants me to come back to the hotel as soon as I can," I said.

"I heard you tell Gus," he said then let loose the dam holding back his feelings.

"Dear girl!" he said, laying his hand affectionately on my shoulder, "don't think I'm ungrateful for what you've done for me, against my own stubbornness If you could only know how I've longed for just a glimpse of Katharine! Will you tell her that?"

"Will I bring her manna from Heaven?" I asked extravagantly, and kissed him

"Get busy with Gus on that beard and whiskers the minute I get out of here," I commanded. "I haven't the slightest idea when I can bring Katharine down that's all in Father's hands But I'll manage it as soon as possible, so it's up to you to be ready."

"I'll be ready," he promised gravely, then Gus came in with word that Winters was waiting.

The trip back to the Lansfield was quickly made, and when I knocked on the door of my suite, Katharine drew me inside.

"Your father said I was to call him from the next suite as soon as you came in," she whispered, "but —have you anything to tell me first?"

"Indeed I have," I said "but I can give you only the high spots now Jack has consented to have you go down, and he's crazily happy at the idea"

"Oh!" She exclaimed, as her hand went to her heart "That's enough bliss for now. You shall tell me all about it later Now I'll call your father."

"Tell her to wait there," my father said quickly, and the next second he came in.

"Sit down," he said, drawing forward a chair 'Something a bit strange has happened, and yet it may have an ordinary explanation at that Tell me, how well do you know John Hayes—the lad who took Redfield's place as understudy that night after Noel knocked Steve out?"

Understudy's Demand.

"As well as I know most of the cast," I said; "not as well as I know Mary and Olma, of curse, and Redfield and Nancy Carew, but fairly well"

"Well enough to justify him in coming here in a state of evident excitement, demanding to see you as soon as possible?"

"That would depend on what had happened to him," I said, then saw that my father was looking at me oddly.

"Have you considered that his last name is the same as that of the lady who has been trying to make trouble for Katharine?" he asked

CANNING EXPLAINED TO VICTORY HEALTH CLUB

Miss Charlotte Ferris Speaks to Club Members At Thursday Afternoon Meeting; Health Program Used By 640 Organizations.

FOOD rationing is making it necessary for housewives to plan now for next winter's meals, Miss Charlotte Ferris said, Thursday afternoon in speaking on "Spring Canning" at the Westinghouse Health for Victory club meeting.

"Women who never before gave a thought to canning are now busy making plans to can many types of foods this spring as an important backlog for the coming months," Miss Ferris reported.

Five ways were listed by the speaker to preserve foods, including canning, dehydrating, quick freezing, brining and storing foods in cellars and pits. "Today, however, we are going to concentrate on the preparation of food for quick freezing and the four principal ways to can—pressure cooker, oven or roaster, water bath and open kettle methods," she told the Health for Victory members, continuing:

"One thing I want to emphasize is, don't be afraid that your canning will be unsuccessful simply because you have had no experience. If you observe certain 'musts' you will get along fine and your canned goods will keep perfectly."

The first rule, Miss Ferris said, is to use good quality, fresh, clean fruits and vegetables. Other requirements are to blanch all vegetables in a steam bath, sterilize all containers and use the proper equipment such as jars, lids and seals.

Such procedures are important to successful canning, the speaker said, because such foods as peas, beans and corn contain considerable starch which expands as the vegetable heats

"Of course, after packing, the vegetables or fruit are covered to within a half inch of the top with liquid, whether it is syrup or water that is to be used."

The Health for Victory members were given many pointers to help them in their canning. For example, they were reminded that it was wise to have a clean, damp cloth handy to wipe the rim of the jar to remove food particles that would prevent a lid from sealing properly.

The Health for Victory program —now used by more than 640 war plants and other organizations— originated at the Westinghouse plant in Mansfield a year ago.
